HAUPTMANN ON TRIAL FOR LINDBERGH BABY MURDER

German Carpenter Taken Into Court at Flemington, N. J.—Hearing Is Expected to Take Four to Six Weeks.

SELECTING OF JURY PROCEEDS BRISKLY

Six Men and Four Women Seated When Session Is Adjourned for Day—Old Courthouse Crowded With Spectators.

Copyright 1935 by the Associated Press. FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 2.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann went on trial today, charged with the murder of the Lindbergh baby. Four women and six men had been accepted and sworn for the jury this afternoon. They attested they had no prejudice against capital punishment and had formed no opinion that could not be overcome by evidence. Their selection was final.

A machinist, Charles Walton, first chosen, will be foreman. The others, in order of their selection, are: Mrs. Rose Hill, 58, a widow of a sailor, with two grown sons; Mrs. Verna Snyder, housewife of a farmer; Mrs. Charles F. Snyder, farmer of Clinton Township, father of two children, 17, 19, and 21; Mrs. Ethel Stockton, housewife of a farmer; Elmer Smith, insurance agent of Clinton Township, father of three children, 17, 19, and 21; Mrs. May F. Breilford, housewife of a farmer. With 10 of the 12 jurors selected, the court adjourned for the day. The trial is expected to last four to six weeks.

Hauptmann was taken into the courtroom at 10:30 a. m. by a guard. He was dressed in a dark suit, white shirt and tie. He was seated at the counsel table. The trial was opened by the State's attorney, who read the indictment. The jury was sworn and the trial began. The State's attorney called the first witness, a maid who claimed to have seen Hauptmann enter the house on the night of the murder. The trial is expected to last four to six weeks.

MAN, WIFE AND SON, 15, HELD IN LUXEMBURG BURGLARIES

Boy Said to Have Admitted Theft and Father Knew of Them, Officer Declares. A man and his wife and their 15-year-old son are held in jail at Clayton today in connection with 13 recent burglaries in Luxembourg which, Constable Doran said, have been admitted by the boy. Doran said watches, rings, other jewelry, pistols, books and other items taken in the burglaries were found at the boy's home. Doran quoted the father as saying he knew of his son's activities, but "had been trying to straighten him out."

NAZIS AND ANTIS FIGHTING IN SAAR; 2 KILLED, 100 HURT

Clashes in Streets of Five Towns Over Issues in Coming Plebiscite — 50 Reported Arrested.

SOME OF INJURED SHOT, OTHERS BEATEN

Residents Are Told All Who Expect Clemency After Election Must Join 'German Front.'

By the Associated Press. SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 2.—Two persons were killed and at least 100 injured yesterday in the Saar, in fights between Nazis and anti-Nazis. Six of the injured received bullet wounds. Although officials of the international police force said "everything is quiet," it was learned that there were fierce fights in at least five places in the territory. Reports indicated 50 persons had been arrested but the police would not confirm them. The two dead were picked up on highways yesterday. One had been stabbed near Saarbrücken and the other shot near Püttlingen. Nazis opened their final campaign, preliminary to the balloting Jan. 13, with four mass meetings today, two in Saarbrücken and the others in Euphrat and Malstatt. Geoffrey G. Knox, Saar commissioner, threatened to dismiss officials who let any news of violence leak out. Earlier Knox had decided to declare a press amnesty as the plebiscite campaign reached its height. A proclamation probably will be issued Jan. 7 freeing several leading Nazis, awaiting trial on charges of slandering the Government, and other political prisoners.

Fight at Landorf.

In a street fight at Landorf, 23 Nazis and Communists were injured. Shots were exchanged. Three were hurt in a similar fight at Eberharn. Two Nazis were shot in the legs at Jaegersfeld when 25 Communists and Nazis fought in the street. Six policemen were suspended as a result of a fight between Nazis and anti-Nazis in Püttlingen, in which one man was beaten with a hammer and shovel and taken to a hospital. The police, or "landjaegers," were charged with treating anti-Nazis too roughly in separating the fighters. Nine shots were fired into the house of a leader of a Nazi women's organization in Budweiler. No one was injured. Officers of the international army of 3500 brought here by the League of Nations to insure order during the balloting remained at their posts during the New Year holiday.

Daily Rallies Held.

Daily rallies are being held throughout the territory. Nazis have delivered the ultimatum that all who expect clemency "after the foreign yoke is removed" must join the German front, Nazi organization, by Jan. 10. Saxons who have children in French schools were warned to remove them by next week. New Year's greetings from Chancellor Hitler of Germany were received by the local head of the Nazis. In return he sent assurances to Berlin that the Saar would vote for a reunion with Germany and that discipline would be maintained. The anti-Nazis are centering their efforts on a demonstration to be held at Saarbrücken Jan. 6.

KING ZOG REPORTED INJURED BY BOMB THROWN IN PALACE

Story From Island of Corfu Not Confirmed; Revolt in Progress. By the Associated Press. ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 2.—Reports from the island of Corfu today said a bomb had been thrown into the palace at Tirana, wounding King Zog of Albania. Immediate confirmation of the report was not forthcoming. A revolt has been in progress in Albania for several days, according to outside reports. The Corfu sources said a general mobilization of Mohammedan forces has been ordered. Christians were expected. Kills Policeman and Himself. By the Associated Press. BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 2.—Night patrolman Lawrence Leit of the Beaver Police Department was shot to death today by Robert W. Morton, who then committed suicide. The officer had been summoned to quiet a neighborhood disturbance and had arrested Morton. The shooting occurred while the two were walking toward the police station.

250 SNOWBOUND IN NEW YORK STATE RESCUED BY PLOWS

Four-Mile Line of Busses, Trucks and Autos Stalled in 10-Foot Drifts.

By the Associated Press. LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Snowplows freed a four-mile line of busses, trucks and automobiles from 10 and 12-foot snowdrifts east of here today. In the line were four busses, carrying perhaps 150 passengers. One, with 60 aboard, had been stalled since 11 o'clock last night. It was estimated 250 persons had been snowbound. Many of the men, women and children in the party were hungry. A snowplow, which was being shipped to a town east of Little Falls, was unloaded from its truck, also snowbound. It went into action, but was shortly blocked by large trucks swerved across the road. The party was marooned about five miles east of Little Falls. The worst blizzard in years roared down the valley last night, closing the highway, the main cross-State route between Buffalo and Albany. Many of the party in the Mohawk Valley went for food and warmth to the farmhouse of Mrs. Ruben Klock.

80 POLISH MINERS ON STRIKE UNDERGROUND SEVEN DAYS

Ventilation Poor, Food Short, Water Menacing Them; Many of Men Seriously Ill. By the Associated Press. KATOWICE, Poland, Jan. 2.—Hopes for the lives of 80 miners who started a "suicide strike" underground at Baska were diminishing today as weakness was thought to be overtaking the men who have remained 250 feet below the surface for seven days. The ventilation was poor, the food was running short, underground waters were menacing their position in the galleries and many of the men were seriously ill. The strike was begun as a protest against the abandonment of the shaft by the owners who said the mine was worthless and the coal poor. The strike was already begun. One hundred men had been employed there and 80 of these wanted to continue the workings as their own enterprise. Four of the strikers went to the surface yesterday to plead for a doctor. Police refused to let them return below ground but a doctor was sent down. The strikers have three lamps, but are only burning one in order to save them rapidly diminishing supply of carbide and stove oil complete darkness. They also are trying to keep a boiler going in order to furnish heat.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT JR. IN AUTO CRASH; MAN HURT

President's Son Released Pending Hearing; Car Skidded Into Parked Machine. By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, was in an automobile collision New Year's morning at Wayne, but escaped injury. It was learned today. The driver of the other car, Edward Newman, 24 years old, of Radnor, was cut and bruised. Arraigned last night before a Justice of the Peace at Wayne, the President's son was released on his own recognizance for further hearing Jan. 15. He explained that he had been blinded by snow and had tried to stop when he saw Newman's car, parked near a railroad station. He said his car skidded. The accident occurred about 1 a. m. Roosevelt, who is a sophomore at Harvard, has been the holiday guest of J. Drexel Paul, in suburban Radnor, and was on his way to a dance in a Philadelphia hotel, he said.

WHOLE ISLAND OF HAWAII SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

Sleepers Were Awakened by Jar but No Damage Has Been Reported. By the Associated Press. HILLO, Hawaii, Jan. 2.—A strong earthquake shook the entire island of Hawaii at 6:46 a. m. today. Sleepers were awakened but no damage was reported. Although there were no indications of volcanic activity, the crater of Kilauea was watched closely. Residents of the village of Kau, on the slope of the volcano, reported that the shock was followed by a deep rumbling roar.

PLUNGES FROM 15TH FLOOR

Woman Killed; Window of Her Buffalo Hotel Room Open. By the Associated Press. BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 2.—A woman who registered about noon as Helen M. Barker of Ann Arbor, Mich., was killed this afternoon when she plunged from a window on the fifteenth floor of Hotel Statler. Police found a Buffalo Public Library card in her handbag. It bore the name of Marion A. Porter of West Seneca, N. Y., a Buffalo suburb. An automobile driver's license in the bag was issued to Ellen Lois Porter of the same address. No notes were found in the room, the window of which was open.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 2.—The Fifty-eighth General Assembly convened at noon today for the biennial session and immediately ratified the permanent organization of the two houses, which was agreed on last night in Democratic majority caucuses in the Senate and House. Neither caucus produced a contest for any of the principal elective offices and states which had been agreed on in pre-caucus discussions went through without alteration. Senator Phil M. Donnelly of Lebanon was chosen president pro tem of the Senate without opposition. Senator Albert M. Clark of Richmond was unopposed for Democratic majority floor leader. Donnelly succeeds Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis as president pro tem. OSARK GANG RAIDS TWO MORE TOWNS

Band Led by Girl at Crane — Village of Ozark Also Visited.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 2.—An Ozark gang that kidnaps night watchmen and citizens before committing burglaries in small towns visited Crane, 35 miles southwest of here in Stone County, at 1 a. m. today, 24 hours after invading Ozark, county seat of Christian County, 18 miles southeast of Springfield. Five of the outlaws made a fruitless attempt to free their alleged chief from jail at Ozark. Today the gang appeared under the leadership of a young woman. When the band vanished from Crane at 4 a. m., six men had been kidnapped, three stores had been robbed and the City Marshal's weapons had been stolen. The kidnapping victims were Night Watchman W. E. Rickman, three Crane youths, Buddy Merrill, Oral Stevens and Bill Bycus, a young transient whose name was not learned. Tom Hemphill, crew caller for the Missouri Pacific Railway. All save Hemphill, who was abducted from the street and left bound in the basement of a store, were in the office of Marshal W. R. Wilks, when the gang entered the town in several automobiles. They were taken to a school house 10 miles north of Crane. Their weapons and a guard stood by his companions. The message was delivered to the Seeks Legislation to Permit Taking Advantage of Housing Act—Fails to Revive Fight for City-Owned Utilities.

By CURTIS A. BETTS, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 2.—Gov. Park, faced with a demand from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration that the State and local governmental units provide $12,000,000 a year to supplement Federal relief funds to be expended in the State, appeared before the Legislature today with a recommendation for an increase in the State sales tax from one-half of 1 per cent to 1 per cent. Coupled with this suggestion, however, the Governor asked that five cents of the 15-cent State tax on property, which yields approximately $1,750,000 a year, be abolished, and that funds be taken from the revenue produced by the sales tax to replace that amount in the funds used for general State operating expenses. The saving to the individual taxpayer by the proposed repeal would be insignificant. In St. Louis, while the State's share of the property tax is only 15 cents on the hundred dollars of valuation, the total levy on property is $2.74. Although the Governor seemingly took the view that doubling the sales tax would supply sufficient revenue for relief needs and for general expenses, officials directly concerned with the economic affairs of the State expressed grave doubt that the Governor's program would meet the Federal requirements. For Criminal Code Reform. Many other subjects were covered in the Chief Executive's biennial message to the Legislature. He advocated reforms in the criminal code as a means to reduce crime, and asked that the 3.2 non-intoxicating beer law be repealed as a means to prevent much bootlegging of whisky and other hard liquor. The message was delivered to the

TRADE BOARD ASKS FOR AUTHORITY TO CHECK MONOPOLY

Urges Congress to Empower It to Prevent Mergers and to End Favors to Big Corporations.

SAYS THIS WAS AIM OF ORIGINAL ACTS

Wants to Regulate Business 'Affecting' as Well as That Actually 'In' Interstate Commerce.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The Federal Trade Commission, in a report prepared for the incoming Congress, today asked for power to stop the concentration of American business in the hands of large corporations.

The commission recommended legislation to eliminate "the steady trend toward monopoly."

On the basis of its chain store and other investigations, the report urged Congress to:

To give it power to prevent one corporation from obtaining control over another by buying its stock and assets, or by consolidating or merging.

To extend the commission's authority to prohibit unfair business practices in interstate commerce to include also those affecting interstate commerce.

To authorize it to halt the granting of more favorable purchasing terms to big corporations merely because of their size.

To empower it to require corporations to divest themselves of property illegally acquired.

The commission reaffirmed its traditional attitude against concentration of business.

The powers sought, the commission said, were intended to be in the original Trade Commission and Clayton Acts, but were found to be unenforceable because of ambiguous wording and adverse court decisions.

Many of the nation's largest corporations have achieved their size by merger, consolidation and acquisition of voting stock interests, the report said.

The elimination of competition between corporations brought about solely by the purchase of assets is not now illegal unless the corporations involved unreasonably restrain commerce in the whole industry," the commission said.

"The proposed amendments are not only intended to make clear that competition between individual units is to be maintained, but also to disperse with the necessity of having to prove a substantial lessening of competition between competing corporations in instances where all, or a controlling stock interest, or all or a major part of the assets have been acquired."

In many of its investigations the commission has found numerous unfair methods of competition and numerous deceptive acts and practices which, although done in interstate commerce, seriously affect honest competitors engaged in interstate commerce," the report said.

"The commission's jurisdiction, if any, over these acts and practices is doubtful. The proposed amendment expressly extends its jurisdiction so as to prohibit them."

The State's Case Against Hauptmann

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 2.

THE story of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping and murder will be unfolded chronologically at the Hauptmann trial. After preliminary witnesses describe the geography of the scene of the crime on Sourland Mountain and the layout of the Lindbergh residence, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his wife, the former Anne Morrow, Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, and Mrs. Ollie Wheatley, widow of the Lindbergh butler, will tell what happened the night of the kidnapping.

The State charges Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the prosaic, phlegmatic carpenter, perpetrated the crime single-handed. On an intricate web of circumstantial evidence the State relies for conviction.

Seven witnesses will be called by the State in an attempt to establish the all-important point that Hauptmann was in the vicinity of the Lindbergh estate at or before the time of the kidnapping, March 1, 1932.

Then will come the evidence exhibits. First will be the ransom note left in the nursery, demanding $50,000 for the return of the baby, and with this will be the other letters of the ransom negotiations. State experts will tell the jury that Hauptmann wrote those notes with their cryptic symbols and they will compare them with specimens of his handwriting.

A ladder, another important clue left at the scene of the crime, is important in the State's case. A lumber expert is to testify the wood of that ladder came from a lumber yard where Hauptmann was employed and that one piece of it matches a piece found in the carpenter's Bronx home.

Witnesses will tell of the $14,590 found in Hauptmann's possession, of other ransom currency he allegedly passed, of bundles of currency seen in a cabinet in his home. The State plans to trace $49,800 of the $50,000 ransom money to Hauptmann's hands.

The sleeping garment the baby wore the night of the kidnapping forms the link which connects the ransom money with the handwriting phase of the prosecution's case. When the Lindberghs insisted they were given some proof that they were treating with the actual abductor of their child, the kidnaper returned the freshly-laundered suit in a package which bore the same handwriting as that of the ransom notes.

One episode in the story will be the payment of the ransom money in a Bronx cemetery. Lindbergh will say the ransom collector's voice was that of Hauptmann. Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafie" of the ransom contacts, is expected by the state to identify Hauptmann as the man to whom he paid the money, and a taxicab driver also will name Hauptmann as the man who paid him to take ransom notes to "Jafie."

The defense contends that Hauptmann was at home the night of the kidnapping-murder and that he received the ransom money found in his possession from a business acquaintance, a doctor Fisch, who has since died.

As for the handwriting, the ladder and other angles of the case, the defense will match the State expert for expert in technical testimony.

The two alibis are the major factors in the defense. Hauptmann's wife and others will swear he met her in the bakery shop where she worked and drove her home the night of the crime.

For the ransom money, the defense hopes to explain it all by the story of the shoe box Fisch gave Hauptmann as he sailed for Germany a few months before he died early in 1934. It was not until a few months before his arrest, so Hauptmann's story goes, that he discovered the box contained money and started to spend it because Fisch died owing him about $7000.

Another Accepted. Charles F. Snyder, Clinton Township farmer, was immediately accepted by the State. Father of two children—16 and 8—he said he had formed no opinion of the case. He was accepted by the defense and sworn in.

Aaron L. Herder, a young farmer from Whitehouse Station, followed Snyder. "I think that would be my duty," he said when the defense asked him if he would defend the case solely on the evidence and the law. The defense challenged peremptorily.

Justice Trenchard, after telling the guards to see that the jurors talk to no one said: "I want you also to see that they read nothing of the case and hear no radio broadcasts." He then called for lunch, recess of one hour and 15 minutes.

Woman Accepted on Jury. Ethel Stockton of Union, wife of a salesman rejected in the morning session, was examined at the afternoon session. She said she was the mother of a 7-year-old son. She was sworn as juror No. 5.

Mrs. Grace Stout, housewife of Lambertville, said she had formed an opinion on the case but could reach an unbiased verdict. She was excused.

Robert Woodward, law student from Lebanon Township, said he had discussed the case at length. The defense challenged him.

Elmer Smith, Lambertville insurance agent, explained he was a No. 1 Public. He said he had not been influenced by the pamphlet circulated to the panel or by newspaper reports of the case. He was seated as juror No. 6.

Irene Kovi of Raritan, a young married woman, was eliminated by a peremptory challenge by the State.

Miss Mary Williams, housekeeper of Frenchtown, declared she had formed a very strong opinion in the case which could not be changed. She was excused. Albert Mathews, a Lambertville clothier, and the father of three children, was excused when the defense used another peremptory challenge.

Miss Anna Snook, housekeeper, Readington, was excused when she said she was needed at home to care for an ailing mother.

Miss Frances Odyke, nurse, Flemington, in whose home Mrs. Hauptmann lived, was dismissed.

CCC Adviser Accepted. Robert Cravatt, High Bridge, an educational adviser at a CCC camp, a bachelor, was accepted as juror number seven. He said he had not read the satirical paper on the Lindbergh case mailed to prospective jurors because the brochure was held at High Bridge Postoffice for postage.

The defense counsel, headed by Edward J. Rellly, had conferred at length in New York.

Hauptmann, nervous and restless, spent the final hours pacing the floor of the county jail cell, trying to read and resting fitfully on his cot.

For 20 minutes, his wife visited him, and emerged to say, "he was in very good spirits." Their year-old son, Manfred—of the same age as was the Lindbergh baby when he died—was with a relative in the Bronx.

Jury Selection to Be Tedious. The task of picking a jury promised to be a protracted, tedious procedure for the spectators packing the pew-like benches, but for Hauptmann, the Bronx carpenter and former German convict, it was one of the most important parts of the trial.

dismissed on a peremptory challenge by the prosecution.

Another Woman Chosen. May F. Breisford, Flemington, housewife, was accepted.

Haskell Robinson, a carpenter, was dismissed by the State on a peremptory challenge.

Caroline Post, Stockton, housewife, told the Court she had an invalid husband whom she could not leave. She was excused.

Raymond Alpaugh, C. Califon, farmer, was excused because of an ailment.

Lawyers Hold Final Conference Before Trial.

The State's legal forces closed their months of preparation yesterday with a painstaking review of all phases of the case and a final questioning of Betty Gow, who was a nurse to the Lindbergh baby.

After the hour's questioning at the nearby Wilbur State Police Barracks late in the afternoon, Assistant Attorney-General Robert Peacock said: "I am impressed that she will be an important witness."

The defense counsel, headed by Edward J. Rellly, had conferred at length in New York.

Hauptmann, nervous and restless, spent the final hours pacing the floor of the county jail cell, trying to read and resting fitfully on his cot.

For 20 minutes, his wife visited him, and emerged to say, "he was in very good spirits." Their year-old son, Manfred—of the same age as was the Lindbergh baby when he died—was with a relative in the Bronx.

Jury Selection to Be Tedious. The task of picking a jury promised to be a protracted, tedious procedure for the spectators packing the pew-like benches, but for Hauptmann, the Bronx carpenter and former German convict, it was one of the most important parts of the trial.

How long the selection of a jury would require was a matter of conjecture, with opinions expressed that it would take the rest of the week. A special panel of 48 persons—27 men and 21 women—was ready for call, but it was probable this would be speedily exhausted and the rest of the general panel of 150 would be used. The 150 women—reported for duty.

The defense has 20 challenges without cause and the State 12, but both sides have unlimited challenges for cause. The State intends to challenge any prospective juror of the same national origin as Hauptmann.

Lindbergh an Early Witness. Lindbergh sat at the prosecution table just as he did two years ago in the century-old Hunterdon County Courthouse when John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) boatbuilder, was convicted of obstructing justice in the hunt for the kidnappers. The Colonel is to be among the first of the State witnesses.

Against the possibility that the defense would challenge the right to try Hauptmann in Hunterdon County, instead of Mercer County where the body was found, the State relied on evidence to be given by Miss Gow.

The nurse found a thumbguard, worn by the child, in Hunterdon County, only 100 yards from the Lindbergh home. The State contends that the baby was dead or dying there, and that the kidnaper ripped the fastened guard from his hand as he tore off the sleeping garment.

How long the trial will last was a matter of guess work, most estimates running from four to six weeks.

Doctor "Understands" Hauptmann's Prints Are Not on Ladder.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Dr. E. M. Hudson, physician and scientist who brought out the existence of more than 500 fingerprints on the ladder found at the Lindbergh estate after the kidnapping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., said today: "I understand that Hauptmann's prints were not found on the ladder, but I can't disclose the authority who told me. The essence of the thing is that if the fingerprints were on the ladder it would prove that Hauptmann had the ladder in his possession. If they were not found there he couldn't have made it or had it around the house for six months or so, since the chemical process I used brings out prints a year old."

ishment. Is it religious or conscientious?"

"Well, I don't think it's right to take a man's life," she replied.

Justice Trenchard tried to elicit a clearer explanation, and she was excused.

Others Questioned. A. R. Heckman, retired business man, was asked by Defense Attorney Fisher if he had received the pamphlet, written by a Chicago woman, satirizing the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation. Heckman said he had not read it and had formed no opinion of Hauptmann's guilt or innocence. He had received the pamphlet, however, he said.

Fisher questioned him about the writings of Walter Winchell. Heckman said he didn't read Winchell's newspaper column, but he had heard him on the radio.

Justice Trenchard, after telling the guards to see that the jurors talk to no one said: "I want you also to see that they read nothing of the case and hear no radio broadcasts." He then called for lunch, recess of one hour and 15 minutes.

Woman Accepted on Jury. Ethel Stockton of Union, wife of a salesman rejected in the morning session, was examined at the afternoon session. She said she was the mother of a 7-year-old son. She was sworn as juror No. 5.

Mrs. Grace Stout, housewife of Lambertville, said she had formed an opinion on the case but could reach an unbiased verdict. She was excused.

Robert Woodward, law student from Lebanon Township, said he had discussed the case at length. The defense challenged him.

Elmer Smith, Lambertville insurance agent, explained he was a No. 1 Public. He said he had not been influenced by the pamphlet circulated to the panel or by newspaper reports of the case. He was seated as juror No. 6.

Irene Kovi of Raritan, a young married woman, was eliminated by a peremptory challenge by the State.

dismissed on a peremptory challenge by the prosecution.

Another Woman Chosen. May F. Breisford, Flemington, housewife, was accepted.

Haskell Robinson, a carpenter, was dismissed by the State on a peremptory challenge.

Caroline Post, Stockton, housewife, told the Court she had an invalid husband whom she could not leave. She was excused.

Raymond Alpaugh, C. Califon, farmer, was excused because of an ailment.

Lawyers Hold Final Conference Before Trial.

The State's legal forces closed their months of preparation yesterday with a painstaking review of all phases of the case and a final questioning of Betty Gow, who was a nurse to the Lindbergh baby.

After the hour's questioning at the nearby Wilbur State Police Barracks late in the afternoon, Assistant Attorney-General Robert Peacock said: "I am impressed that she will be an important witness."

The defense counsel, headed by Edward J. Rellly, had conferred at length in New York.

Hauptmann, nervous and restless, spent the final hours pacing the floor of the county jail cell, trying to read and resting fitfully on his cot.

For 20 minutes, his wife visited him, and emerged to say, "he was in very good spirits." Their year-old son, Manfred—of the same age as was the Lindbergh baby when he died—was with a relative in the Bronx.

Jury Selection to Be Tedious. The task of picking a jury promised to be a protracted, tedious procedure for the spectators packing the pew-like benches, but for Hauptmann, the Bronx carpenter and former German convict, it was one of the most important parts of the trial.

How long the selection of a jury would require was a matter of conjecture, with opinions expressed that it would take the rest of the week. A special panel of 48 persons—27 men and 21 women—was ready for call, but it was probable this would be speedily exhausted and the rest of the general panel of 150 would be used. The 150 women—reported for duty.

The defense has 20 challenges without cause and the State 12, but both sides have unlimited challenges for cause. The State intends to challenge any prospective juror of the same national origin as Hauptmann.

Lindbergh an Early Witness. Lindbergh sat at the prosecution table just as he did two years ago in the century-old Hunterdon County Courthouse when John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) boatbuilder, was convicted of obstructing justice in the hunt for the kidnappers. The Colonel is to be among the first of the State witnesses.

Against the possibility that the defense would challenge the right to try Hauptmann in Hunterdon County, instead of Mercer County where the body was found, the State relied on evidence to be given by Miss Gow.

The nurse found a thumbguard, worn by the child, in Hunterdon County, only 100 yards from the Lindbergh home. The State contends that the baby was dead or dying there, and that the kidnaper ripped the fastened guard from his hand as he tore off the sleeping garment.

How long the trial will last was a matter of guess work, most estimates running from four to six weeks.

Doctor "Understands" Hauptmann's Prints Are Not on Ladder.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Dr. E. M. Hudson, physician and scientist who brought out the existence of more than 500 fingerprints on the ladder found at the Lindbergh estate after the kidnapping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., said today: "I understand that Hauptmann's prints were not found on the ladder, but I can't disclose the authority who told me. The essence of the thing is that if the fingerprints were on the ladder it would prove that Hauptmann had the ladder in his possession. If they were not found there he couldn't have made it or had it around the house for six months or so, since the chemical process I used brings out prints a year old."

COUNTY OVER-RUN WITH SLOT MACHINES

Charge of Associate Prosecutor in Letter to Sheriff Urging Arrests.

Stating that St. Louis County is run with slot machines, Associate Prosecutor John J. Dwyer today wrote Sheriff Deussen the arrest of proprietors of places in which machines are as well as confiscation of the machines. The letter stated: "The county at this time is literally over-run with slot machines. They are to be found in stores and homes throughout the unincorporated parts of the county, in the City of St. Louis and some of the other incorporated districts. "In three occasions this office addressed to you and the other agencies letters respecting confiscation of these machines, yet we are receiving almost daily complaints that children are playing with money given them for a school. These complaints are being made in writing and in person to us and written in as private citizen hesitates to prosecute for a purely punitive purpose. Some of these letters stated that the devices are being quite openly, frequently in presence of deputy sheriffs. "Our office has made two raids in St. Louis and taken up a number of the machines. This has not seemed to be effective and we are requesting you to take the machines in place under arrest of the proprietors of the places that operate for the purpose of prosecuting as this type of game may seem, it not only violates law but usually constitutes an wedge for all types of crime. This office is anxious to prosecute the operators of these machines and make arrests as requested. "In many cases owners of machines in which machines were placed have been arrested. He had to remove the machines by his own hands and remarked that new machines are installed as fast as the old ones are removed. One machine operator recently obtained 100 confiscated machines by the order.

WIDOW OF CONVICT NASH TELLS TRUTH

She Remains in Jail at Her Own Request—Government Rests Without Calling All Its Witnesses.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 2.—The Government rested its case against seven defendants charged with conspiracy in the Union Station machine gun murder case at 1:50 p.m. today.

Several witnesses summoned by the Government had not been called to the stand when the prosecution closed its case with the testimony of Mrs. E. Brannan, a Federal fingerprint expert. Brannan testified that he had identified a fingerprint found on a beer bottle in the home of the late Verne C. Miller, one of the three men named by the Government as the machine gunners in the murder of four officers and Frank Nash, a Federal prisoner, here 18 months ago, as that of Mrs. Vivian Mathis, who was known as Miller's wife. The bottle was one of several found in the house by detectives investigating the killings. The theory was advanced at the time that some of the principals in the case met at Miller's house after the killing. Mrs. Mathis pleaded guilty to one of the three counts against her when the trial opened. "Defense motions for a directed verdict of acquittal and for dismissal of the charges were overruled by Judge Merrill E. Otis and the defense was instructed to continue with the trial.

"Third Degree" Denied. Two Federal agents denied today that they had used "third degree" methods to obtain a statement from Frank E. Fritz Mulloy, one of the six defendants in the case. The jury was taken out of the courtroom on the order of United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis while Mulloy declared that Federal Agent Leon G. Turrou, an investigator in the Lindbergh case, had cursed him and threatened to "throw me in jail and let me rot if I didn't make a statement."

He said a written statement was given him but refused to sign it except in the presence of his lawyer. The charge was denied by Turrou and by Walter F. Trahan, another Federal agent, who said Mulloy made a statement to Turrou in his conversation June 16, 1933, in which Mulloy told Stacci, Chicago night club operator, who also is a defendant, Mulloy to get in touch with the late Verne C. Miller. Miller is named by the Government as one of the three men who killed Frank Nash, a Federal prisoner, and four officers at the Union Station here the following day.

Tells of Questioning. The jury was re-admitted after Turrou anxious to complete his testimony in order to fly to Fleming, N. J., to testify in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the Lindbergh kidnaping, took the stand. Turrou said he questioned Mulloy in July, 1933, about a telegraph money order for $500 sent from Kansas City to Frank Nash, then under the alias of "George W. Miller," at Hot Springs, Ark., May 18, 1933. Mulloy denied having sent the order. Turrou said, and was then asked if he hadn't asked the telegraph clerk to typewrite the order so that his handwriting would not be the company records.

"He still persisted that he knew nothing about it," Turrou said. "I then confronted him with the operator who sent the money order at his request. She identified him and he then admitted he had sent the money."

Johnny Lazia Mentioned. The name of John Lazia, North Side political lieutenant of "Boss" T. J. Pendergast, who was machine-churned to death here last summer, was mentioned by R. C. Suran, a Federal agent, as he gave the substance of a statement Stacci is purported to have made in Chicago in July this year. Suran said Stacci told him of coming to Kansas City where he saw Miller, Nash, Mulloy and others and of being taken to "a downtown gambling establishment where he was introduced to a big shot politician named John Lazia."

Rumors that Lazia had helped the Union Station gunmen escape and that he was killed because he knew too much were widely circulated after he was shot down in front of the apartment in which he lived here.

Previously the agent had testified that two other defendants, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farmer, Joplin, Mo., had admitted to him they harbored Nash for a week after his escape from the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Mrs. Nash Stays in Jail. His testimony followed that of the escaped convict's widow, Mrs. Frances Nash, who declared she was afraid of her life "for telling the truth" in the case. The widow, who spent the entire day on the stand as a Government witness, is being held in jail at her own request. Although she was a defendant in the case along with Mulloy, the Farmers, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Galatis and Louis Stacci, charges against her will be dismissed. The Government alleges the defendants through a series of telephone calls arranged with three gunmen to liberate Nash, who was being returned to Leavenworth after his arrest at Hot Springs, Ark. Mrs. Nash testified that when she came to Kansas City in October to testify before the Federal grand jury she was kept in the Kansas City, Kan., county jail at her own request for her protection.

The jury was told to disregard her statements concerning her fears. Mrs. Nash, her testimony indicated, decided after first attempting to conceal facts of the case, to tell everything and enter an agreement with the Government whereby she would receive freedom for her testimony.

United States Attorney Milligan, by questioning the witness, read the agreement into the court record. The 33-year-old widow frequently spoke of gangster names and of Chicago beer racket activity. Among the gangsters she knew well was Verne Miller, identified by the Government as the "trigger man" in the Union Station killings. "We became one big family," Mrs. Nash said, and when she was asked how she and Nash got along with Miller and Mrs. Vivian Mathis, she related that Miller and Mrs. Mathis had an apartment in Chicago where she and Nash stayed so frequently that they kept their clothes there.

Defense Attorney Henry L. Balaban brought out that Miller had accompanied Nash and his wife to New York, where Nash underwent an operation in 1932. Miller returned to Chicago for Mrs. Mathis and took her to New York, Mrs. Nash testified, and the group celebrated Christmas there. They frequently saw Miller in Hot Springs where he was often in the White Front Cigar Store, the place where Nash was subsequently arrested, Mrs. Nash said.

Judge Otis interrupted the cross-examination after several hours had elapsed.

"It seems to the Court that the cross-examination of this witness has been very full and complete," he remarked. "The Court hopes it will be completed rapidly."

Phone Call Before Killing. Mrs. Nash told of receiving a long-distance telephone report from Miller in Joplin seven hours before the killings. He had been on a reconnoitering trip to the station and telephoned from there. "Don't carry on like that," she testified Miller told her, "you'll see 'Jelly' (Nash) again soon."

STATE'S COUNSEL CALLS MAYS' BANK STOCK SALE SHAM

Glendy B. Arnold Says Grand National Deal With Wellston Trust Was to Cover Loan.

The suit in which John W. Snyder, receiver for Grand National Bank, is seeking to collect $240,000 from Wellston Trust Co., representing its liabilities as the owner of 2400 shares of Grand National stock, was taken under advisement by Federal Judge Davis after a one-day hearing Monday.

Both banks, which were controlled by Ed Mays, are being liquidated. The State Finance Department, in charge of liquidation of Wellston Trust Co., is resisting Snyder's claim, contending the stock was never actually owned by Wellston Trust Co., but that it was its possession through an arrangement devised to evade a State statute limiting the amount the bank could lend to any one borrower.

The deposition of Fred Krone, who was president of Wellston Trust Co. at the time it acquired the Grand National stock, was filed today. He said the deal was initiated by Ed Mays, and when suggested by him was approved unanimously by the Wellston Trust Co. directors. Principal witnesses were Oscar H. Hentschel, formerly treasurer of Wellston Trust Co., and A. B. Garvin, formerly president of that bank and one of its directors in November, 1931, when the bank paid Mays $275,000 for the Grand National stock, at the rate of $115 a share.

Four Loans for $190,000. Prior to that transaction, according to their testimony, the State Finance Department had protested against four loans, totaling $190,000, which Wellston Trust Co. had made to four associates of Mays, described at the hearing by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold, attorney for the State Finance Department, as "straw men" for Mays.

When Mays sold the Grand National stock to Wellston Trust Co., Hentschel and Garvin testified, these loans were paid off. There had been some discussion of the legality of the transaction among directors of Wellston Trust Co. at the meeting at which purchase of the Grand National stock was authorized, the testimony showed. Directors approved it when advised by Albert D. Norton, counsel for both banks, that the deal was legal.

Agreement to Repurchase. At the time of the sale the Continental Securities & Holding Co., a holding company for Mays' enterprises, executed an agreement to repurchase the Grand National stock, but the repurchase agreement had not been carried out when the banks were closed, early in 1933.

Both Hentschel and Garvin testified that they had signed sworn statements of the Wellston Trust Co., which listed among its assets the 2400 shares of Grand National Bank stock.

Arnold contended, however, that these records of the Wellston Trust Co. were no more binding than the records of the Grand National Bank which showed that the stock was still carried in the name of Mays after the purported sale to Wellston Trust Co.

Characterizing directors of the Wellston Trust Co. as "dupes" for Mays, Arnold argued that the transaction was a "sham contrived by Mays to cover up a loan of $275,000 to the Wellston Trust Co. could not have lent more than $55,000 to any one borrower, and could not have invested more than $18,300 in the stock of any one company.

Limitation on Loans. He referred to statutes limiting loans which State banks may make to any one borrower to 25 per cent of their combined capital and surplus, and limiting investments in one stock to 15 per cent of the combined capital and surplus. The Wellston Trust Co. was capitalized at $100,000 and carried a surplus account of $122,000.

Rubey M. Hulien, attorney for the Grand National Bank, however, argued that an exception was made in the law which permitted a trust company to buy stock of another bank, exceeding 15 per cent of its own capital and surplus.

Wellston Trust Co. depositors who had $96,000 in the bank, have received 10 per cent payments on their accounts. Grand National Bank depositors have received payments totaling 52 1/2 per cent of the $1,774,000 they had in the bank when it was closed.

GETS A YEAR AND A DAY ON MAIL FRAUD CHARGE

A. W. Grossmann Pleads No Contest to Indictment Based on Business Directory Promotion. Allen W. Grossmann, manager of the investment department of the Continental Life Insurance Co., was sentenced to a year and a day in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, O., by Federal Judge Davis today when he pleaded no contest to an indictment charging mail fraud in the promotion of a business directory.

Grossmann's application for parole was taken under advisement. His attorney told the court Grossmann had undertaken to get up the directory in good faith, but had not been able to sell enough listings to put it over. In the directory Grossmann intended to list one real estate dealer and one investment broker in each county of the United States with the idea that this information would be useful to insurance companies. The scheme was undertaken after Grossmann had lost his job with the Continental Life Insurance Co. Since then, his attorney said, he had been re-employed at his old job by State Superintendent of Insurance O'Malley, now in charge of the company, and had paid back about $200 of the $1500 he collected for listings.

THREE E. ST. LOUIS HOMES BURN WITH OCCUPANTS AWAY

One Completely Destroyed; Wind Carries Blaze to Other Structures; Damage $8500. Three East St. Louis homes were burned, one of them completely destroyed, in a fire, Monday evening, that broke out in the absence of the occupants of the homes, and caused a total damage of about $8500.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, started in the upstairs section of the story and a half brick bungalow of Paul Boesch, 320 North Sixty-seventh street. A stiff wind carried the fire to adjacent homes of similar construction on each side, that of Patrick Hahn at No. 324 and Joseph Hallerman, No. 318.

Before firemen could control the flames, the Boesch home was destroyed, with damage estimated at $7800; the Hahn house was damaged about $1400, and the Hallerman home about $300.

BEATEN TO DEATH WITH BALL BAT AT FAMILY PARTY

Louis Stotts, 40, Hit on Head by Walter Bender, Who Says Brother-in-Law Threatened Him.

Louis Stotts, 40 years old, 2604 North Sarah street, was beaten to death early yesterday, after a family New Year's party at the home of his brother-in-law, Walter Bender, 42-year-old teamster and World War veteran, 2529 North Sarah street.

A verdict of homicide, holding Bender for the grand jury, was returned today by a Coroner's jury. Policemen testified, giving a statement by Bender. The wives of the two men testified that Stotts had held a grudge against Bender. The women said Stotts, who was larger than Bender, threatened to kill him. Mrs. Stotts testified that her husband had become abusive after a quarrel at the party.

Mrs. Bender, Stotts' sister, said Stotts frequently had threatened Bender and had accosted him with a knife and a revolver in the past. Whenever he had been drinking, they said, he became incensed with Bender. Before the inquest the police quoted Mrs. Stotts as denying there had been trouble at the party.

Bender was quoted by the police as saying he hit Stotts on the head with a baseball bat, after Stotts, drinking and quarrelsome, had said to him, "It's either me or you," and had advanced toward him with the apparent intention of assaulting him.

Stotts and his wife spent New Year's eve with the Benders. Bender said that shortly after midnight Stotts became abusive and was told by Mrs. Bender to go home.

A few minutes later Mrs. Bender went to the Stotts home across the street to return a small radio set borrowed for the evening. On her return she told her husband that Stotts had made threats against her.

Heard Noise in Yard. About 1 a. m., Bender said, he heard a noise in the front yard, and going out, found Stotts there. He said that as Stotts advanced on him saying, "It's either me or you," he struck his brother-in-law with his fist and knocked him down.

Stotts got up, he continued, and Bender came in a baseball bat which was lying in the yard. He was quoted as saying he hit Stotts on the head with it several times. He then took Stotts into his home. Mrs. Bender's screams brought Mrs. Stotts to the Bender home, where policemen, answering a call, found

THREE DEMOCRATS TAKE OVER OFFICES

Judge Arnold, John P. English and Fred A. Renick Take Office.

Three more Democrats elected last November took office today, replacing Republicans in the St. Louis official family. Two others took oaths of office yesterday.

Replacing Charles W. Holtcamp, who had served seven consecutive four-year terms, Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold was sworn in by Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan. At City Hall, John P. English, Recorder of Deeds, and Fred A. Renick, License Collector, made their official entry into office.

Arnold announced that Probate Clerk Fred H. Haid and 16 deputy clerks who had served under Holtcamp would be retained temporarily. They include J. Henry Koenig, cashier, who has served since 1888, and six others who held jobs throughout the Holtcamp administration.

James P. Finnegan, Prosecuting Attorney, and John Jack Connolly, Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, were sworn in yesterday by Judge Joseph F. Dickmann of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Oaths also were administered to Frank E. Mathews, David Fitzgibbon and Herman Willer, Associate Prosecutors appointed by Finnegan. A fourth associate, a Negro, will be appointed later.

Edward Gaffney, formerly clerk in the State automobile license office, was sworn in as Connolly's chief deputy. As soon as they become familiar with the work of the office, other Democrats will be appointed to succeed Republican employees.

Harry P. Rosecan, retiring Prosecuting Attorney, announced he would open offices in the Paul Brown Building for the general practice of law.

Seven newly elected Circuit Judges, H. Sam Priest, Circuit Clerk-elect, and L. J. Kichham, new Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, will take office next Monday.

The two women caring for Stotts. Bender came in while policemen were there, saying he was just returning after having gone to a telephone to call the police.

5 PERISH IN FIRE IN COUNTY HOME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

15 Other Inmates Are Injured When Flames Destroy Dormitory Near Gaffney.

CONVICTS RESCUE
32 OF 37 INMATES

Two of Those Killed Rushed Back Into Blaze—Origin of Blaze Is Not Discovered.

By the Associated Press.
GAFFNEY, S. C., Jan. 2.—Five aged men were burned to death early yesterday and 15 persons were injured when fire destroyed the Cherokee County Home.

Convicts from a nearby prison camp saved 32 of the 37 inmates of the home as enfeebled and bed-ridden men and women fell unconscious in the fire and smoke.

About 20 white and Negro convict trustees, roused from sleep in their bunks 500 yards away, plunged time and again into the burning building.

Prison camp blankets were wrapped about the survivors to protect them from the cold. Camp trucks brought the injured to hospitals to this town, four miles from the scene.

There was no water or equipment with which to fight the fire. Authorities said the fire started in the roof of the building which was the only one of the County Home group to be destroyed.

Authorities identified the dead as Pink Young, 68 years old, and Tom Young, 73, brothers, Wash Gregory, 70; Alf Morris, 70, and Ransome Franklin, 75.

Gov. Ibra C. Blackwood said that while he had no official information on the work of the convicts, he expected to receive a report and take "appropriate" action.

Two Return to Flames.
Dock Parris, one of the convicts, said two who lost their lives rushed back into the flames after being carried to safety. Parris, serving a life term for murdering a mill watchman in a quarrel growing out of the textile strike last September, said the men acted as if they were crazy and added he knew of no reason the two should have fled back into the flames.

The fire was discovered about 3 a. m. by Mrs. Bez Blanton, wife of the County Home superintendent. Blanton said he and his wife were aroused by palls of smoke that seem to fill every room. They immediately began arousing the occupants while the convicts were arriving from their camp.

In a few moments the structure was a mass of flames and in a short while burned to the ground, leaving only the blackened shell of the brick framework.

The uninjured rescued were housed in other County Home buildings near the dormitory which was built 10 years ago.

L. F. Allison, prison camp foreman who praised the work of his convicts, said there were no facilities for fighting the flames and that the only thing "we could do was to let her burn."

Injured Will Recover.
At the hospital physicians said all would recover, but that the 15 were suffering in varying degrees from exposure, exhaustion and near suffocation. They were mostly aged women.

Convicts recovered the bodies of the five dead and while funeral arrangements were being made, authorities went forward with plans for an inquest and a complete investigation.

Rescuers said some of the trapped men and women fought their rescuers like wildmen and that some had to be held with force to prevent their running back into the building which belched smoke and flame at every opening.

Crowds which gathered were helpless to aid in the rescue or to fight the flames. They could only stand about, at a distance from the terrific heat, and listen to the moans and cries of those who were bed-ridden or trapped.

Eleven Hurt in Explosion.
MEDICINE HAT, Alberta, Jan. 2.—Eleven persons were injured, four of them seriously, last night when two gas explosions demolished a frame house and adjoining structures.

THREE ARE KILLED IN TWO DAYS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Miller Kost, 27, and Frank Schoenborn, 18, Are Fatally Injured in Collisions in City.

Two young men died of automobile injuries in St. Louis yesterday, and a man was killed in East St. Louis.

Miller Kost, 27 years old, 1610 South Thirteenth street, was injured fatally at 7:25 a. m. when an automobile in which he was a passenger jumped the curb and overturned on the sidewalk in the 3700 block of Chouteau avenue. Kost, thrown to the pavement, died 40 minutes later of a fractured skull. The driver, Clifton Griffin, 21, 4119 Westminster place, is in City Hospital with a skull injury. Kost, a janitor, was married.

Frank Schoenborn, 18, died at St. Anthony's Hospital early yesterday of a fractured skull suffered in a collision at Compton avenue and Cherokee street Monday night. He was riding in a machine driven by Charles Davis, 3142 Cherokee street. The car caromed off another, driven by Monroe Garcelon, 4028A Lafayette avenue, swerved and upset. Davis suffered a skull injury. Schoenborn, unemployed, resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schoenborn, 3454 Louisiana avenue. A coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today against Davis. Witnesses testified he was driving between 50 and 60 miles an hour. Davis did not testify.

Auto Kills Man, Continues On.
Max Freidenberg, 70, retired real estate dealer, was found dead in State street, at Tenth street, East St. Louis, at 6:15 a. m. yesterday a short time after he left his home, 312 North Tenth street, to go to a synagogue. He had suffered fractures of the skull and leg, and apparently was struck by an automobile, which sped on.

A motorist, who stopped at the police station a short time later and reported he had been in a minor accident in the 600 block of State street, was held for investigation in Freidenberg's death. His car had a bent fender, and the parking light had been knocked off. Freidenberg, who formerly resided in St. Louis, is survived by his wife, two sons and three daughters.

Machine Wrecked, Catches Fire.
Two men were injured when the borrowed automobile in which they were riding hit a trolley pole and a street light standard and caught fire at Broadway and Wyoming street early yesterday. Fred Ketterer, 35, 2212A South Fourth street, the driver, suffered a skull injury and burns. Herman Moorkamp, 38, 3624 Nebraska avenue, suffered a fractured arm and burns. Firemen were called to put out the blaze.

160 Motor Vehicle Fatalities in 1934, an Increase of 15.

There were 160 motor vehicle fatalities in St. Louis in 1934, as compared with 145 in 1933.

Cornelius Dougherty, 78, 1206 Temple place, was killed at 5:40 p. m. Monday when he was run over by a Public Service Co. bus in Page boulevard, 150 feet west of Blackstone avenue. He was on his way after visiting his son at 1320A Shawmut place. The bus was driven by Charles Ernest.

Two Men, Woman Killed in Auto Accidents Near St. Louis.

Edmund Theobald, 38, of New Baden, Ill., was killed Monday night when an automobile he was driving side-swiped another car at a curve on Illinois Highway 13, between East St. Louis and Belleville. His 16-year-old daughter, Lucille; a friend, A. C. Elliott, of New Baden, and three persons in the second machine were injured.

Miss Louise Glass, 68, of Belleville, was killed Monday night when struck by an automobile while crossing West Main street, near Eighth street, on her way home from church. The driver said he did not see her.

Walter Hunn, 44, a farmer of West Alton, Mo., died at St. Charles Monday night of a fractured skull and other injuries. He was hit by an automobile while on his way home from church Sunday morning.

LAYS WOMAN'S DEATH TO DETONATING CAP IN COAL

Ballistics Expert Thus Explains Fatal Wounding as She Fired Furnace.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 2.—A theory that a coal miner's detonating cap, exploding in the family furnace, caused the death of Miss Katherine Briscoe, was advanced last night by Dr. Robert W. Wood, ballistics expert of the Johns Hopkins University.

He said this appeared the probable solution of the mystery which has baffled police since the woman was fatally wounded Monday when she went to the basement of her home to fire the furnace.

He said a detonating cap used by miners to set off explosions to loosen coal deposits would drive a part of its metal container with tremendous force. His theory was that the explosive device was accidentally left in a shipment of coal.

Earthquake in Georgia.
YOUNG HARRIS, Ga., Jan. 2.—A slight earthquake that lasted about a minute and a half was reported here by residents of Young Harris, Hiwassee and outlying districts in this section of the North Georgia mountains. The sixth tremor was felt early yesterday morning. No damage was done.

MAN KILLED BY POLICEMAN AFTER HE SHOTS WIFE

Negro Opens Fire as Woman Is Preparing to Leave Home Because of Quarrel.

Hurston McKissick, a Negro porter, was shot to death Monday night by Patrolman Raymond Mayfield after McKissick had shot his wife, Carrie. A coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned today. The shooting occurred at the McKissick home, 1523 Whittier street, as Mrs. McKissick was gathering her belongings, preparing to leave home because of a quarrel with her husband. She had asked Patrolman Mayfield to be present to avert trouble.

Mayfield reported that McKissick, after trying vainly to persuade his wife to stay, fired four shots at her with an automatic pistol, wounding her in the right thigh, the left ankle and the lower back. McKissick then pointed the pistol at Mayfield, the policeman reported. Mayfield fired twice, wounding McKissick in the head and abdomen.

McKissick, who was 32 years old, died at City Hospital No. 2 about two hours later. His wife, who is 28, is a patient there.

New Officer of Clothing Firm.
Charles McGowan, general manager of J. S. Wolff Clothing Co., Seventh and Olive streets, was elected executive vice-president of the firm at a recent meeting of the board of directors. He took over his new duties today. McGowan is widely known as a merchandising expert and is recognized as one of the country's foremost stylists and promotional directors.

THREE SISTERS AND DAUGHTER OF ONE ARE KILLED BY GAS

Accidental Disconnection of Cooking Appliance Causes Deaths at Elizabeth, N. J.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 2.—Three sisters and the daughter of one of them died in the gas-filled kitchen of their home yesterday, victims, the County Physician said, of an accidentally disconnected cooking appliance.

They were Mrs. Carrie Harth, 79 years old; her daughter, Miss Carrie Harth, 51, and the aged woman's sisters, Miss Angelina Rode, 55, and Mrs. Tillie Kuhn, 69.

The women apparently were overcome as they prepared breakfast. The body of Miss Rode was found in a chair. The others were lying near the stove, on which a gas plate, with its rubber hose displaced, was found.

"Red Shirts" Arrested in Killing of Five Mexican Catholics

PART of group of 57 members of an organization of young revolutionaries seized in Coyacan, Mexico (D. F.) suburb, following clash in front of a church after morning mass.

WIREFOTOS SENT AS RAPIDLY AS NEWS

Associated Press Inaugurates Telegraphic Picture Service in 25 Cities.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Pictures and stories of news events on New Year's day were transmitted at equal speed yesterday over leased wires between 25 cities of the United States, as 46 daily newspapers, in conjunction with the Associated Press, introduced wirephotos.

At 3 a. m., Eastern time, transmission of news pictures by wire was inaugurated over a 10,000-mile transcontinental network.

The new service delivered in time for publication in morning newspapers in New York pictures of New Year's celebration in San Francisco's Chinatown. It delivered in time for evening newspaper publication in Atlanta, action pictures of the Alabama-Stanford football game yesterday at Pasadena, Cal.

It recorded the fire at the South Carolina Alms House, where five aged men were burned to death; the reinauguration of Gov. Lehman at Albany, N. Y.; the passing of the winning float in Pasadena's Tournament of Roses; football games between East and West at San Francisco, Tulane and Temple at New Orleans, and Hatus crossing the finish line at the Tropical Park (Fla.) race course.

It delivered these pictures in various parts of the country so rapidly that newspapers were able to carry visual as well as verbal records of events thousands of miles away.

Events outside the United States were photographed and relayed. The finish of the opening race of the season at Havana's Oriental Park in Cuba was photographed at 2:30, sent to Miami by plane at 2:30, and placed in newspapers offices throughout the country in the early evening. From Mexico to the wirephoto circuit, by way of Dallas, came a photograph of young Mexican "Red Shirts" arrested as an aftermath of Sunday's clash in which five Catholics were killed.

Pictures were transmitted at a steady pace of more than a newspaper page an hour, without crowding. Its maximum speed is half a page in 17 minutes.

Nation-wide Broadcasts. Two nation-wide radio broadcasts describing wirephoto marked the inauguration of the new service.

President Frank B. Noyes of the Associated Press, speaking from Washington over the National Broadcasting System, called wirephoto "perhaps the most important development in journalism since the first news dispatch was sent over a telegraph wire in 1846."

In the New York wirephoto room, while Norris A. Huse, executive editor of the Associated Press News Photo Service, explained the process to listeners on the Columbia Broadcasting System, a photograph was taken and transmitted to all other cities on the wirephoto network. Less than 15 minutes later the program was shifted to Washington where the reception of the photograph was described by Byron Price, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press.

Weather Maps Transmitted. The United States Weather Bureau said distribution of its daily weather maps by wirephoto was a long step forward in dissemination of weather information.

The maps, which will be sent twice daily, showing weather conditions at 260 stations throughout the United States and Canada, present simplified information about the atmospheric condition of the entire United States.

Each day at 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. the 200 United States weather observers and 60 Canadian observers take readings of barometers, thermometers and velocity instruments. They wire the information immediately to the Weather Bureau at Washington, where it is analyzed and put down on a map of the United States which is then sent to the Associated Press for immediate transmission throughout the country.

Rivers' Stages at Other Cities. Pittsburgh, 15 feet, a rise of 2.2; Cincinnati, 15.3 feet, a fall of 2.5; Louisville, 13.5 feet, a rise of 0.3; Cairo, 18.8 feet, a rise of 1.3; Memphis, 10.1 feet, a rise of 0.8; Vicksburg, 10 feet, a rise of 0.4; New Orleans, 1.7 feet, a fall of 0.1.

Registrations of unemployed persons with the Missouri State Employment Service during 1934 totaled 266,537, an increase of 67,573 over the registrations in 1933, according to the organization's annual report. Applications taken during the year numbered 67,132 as against 57,102 in 1933. Applicants were placed in 9281 jobs, of which 4167 were classed as permanent. In 1933, 11,681 applicants were placed. Of the 1934 registrations, 72,146 were new and 194,391 were "repeat" registrations.

PROTEST OVER THE KILLING OF CATHOLICS IN MEXICO

Resignation of Official Who Founded Red Shirts Is Demanded at Meeting.

MEXICO, D. F., Jan. 2.—Several hundred residents of the city and the townspeople of Coyacan held a protest meeting on the Coyacan Plaza yesterday and decided to demand the resignation of Tomas Garrido a Canabal, Secretary of Agriculture, as a result of the assassination of five Catholics outside their church Sunday.

Garrido was founder of the Red Shirt organization, 62 members of which were held-pending an investigation of their part in the crimes. Those at the protest meeting decided to form a "club of the assassinated of Coyacan." The announced aims were to carry on a nationwide campaign to achieve four points: resignation of Garrido; the unseating of the Tabasco Deputy Perez; dismissal of the Coyacan police delegate, who was accused of aiding the Red Shirts, and vigorous prosecution of the Red Shirts.

Baby Suffocated in Parked Car.

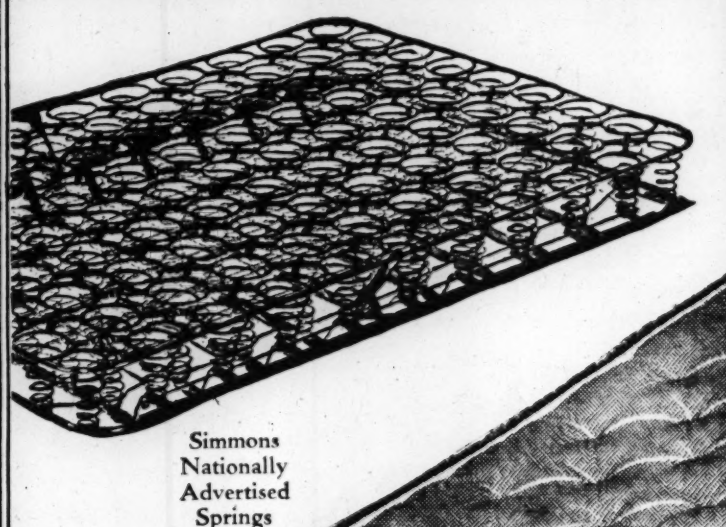

WAUKESHA, Wis., Jan. 2.—The three-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Dabel died of suffocation New Year's eve, Corner John Schaeffer said, when the mother left the baby swathed too tightly in blankets in a parked car while the parents took part in a New Year's party in a hotel. The mother said she had visited the car frequently to assure herself all was well. Shortly after midnight she found the baby dead.

GOV. PARK ADVISES DOUBLING SALES TAX, REALTY LEVY REPEAL

be received from the cities and counties, certainly not to exceed $4,000,000. The general opinion expressed by officials is that the Legislature must provide at least $8,000,000 if the State comes up to the demands in the official Federal communication on the subject.

A year ago the Legislature appropriated $4,000,000 of State funds for relief during 1934, but has fallen far short of paying that amount, the revenues from the sales tax and the liquor tax having been disappointing. Instead of $4,000,000 the State has expended only about $2,700,000 for relief.

For Repeal of 3.2 Beer Law.

The Governor said that issuance of 10 licenses for the sale of 3.2 per cent beer had been taken advantage of by numerous licensees as a cloak for the sale of whiskey and other liquors, and that he saw no way to correct the situation except to repeal the 3.2 law and either place all beer in one position before the law, or to class 3.2 beer with other non-intoxicating beverages and remove the revenue tax from it.

"If it is intoxicating, and this is for you to determine," he said, "then there is no reason for the distinction which has been heretofore made by you, and you should deal with it as any other beer. The question is one of fact for you to determine with a view of the interests of the people of the State rather than those of the brewers and beer vendors."

He advocated extending the time of closing at midnight of places in which intoxicating liquor is sold from the present legal hour of midnight to 1 or 1:30 o'clock in the morning, except on Saturday nights, when he would continue to close them at midnight. "The hour now used was probably borrowed from some early enactment when the midnight hour was in fact the time of quiet and peace and rest," he said. "This is no longer so and the hour should be adjusted to the times, else we will continue to see almost total disregard for this law."

Criminal Law Revision.

The Governor had three recommendations for changes in the criminal code. One was to shorten the time in which appeals may be perfected from one year after conviction to four months, with power in the trial judge to fix the time at not more than six months. Another was to require that applications for changes of venue in criminal cases

Quicker With This Deep-Penetrating Salve That Has

50% to 100% MORE MEDICATION

To drive out a child's deep-seated cold you need "positive medication" and "deep penetration." Penetro gives you BOTH! Actual laboratory tests prove that Penetro contains from 50% to 100% more medication than ordinary cold salves. In addition, because of its base of old-fashioned mutton suet, Penetro carries this medication deep within to break up congestion and drive out colds quicker than anything you ever used before. Treat father's colds with Penetro, and yours too, mother. It's stainless and snow-white. 25c, 50c, $1.00 jars.

NEW "DIFFERENT" BREAD RELIEVES CONSTIPATION

Nut-Like Flavor Also Feature of Honey Krushed Wheat Bread

It's surprising—almost amazing—how Honey Krushed Wheat Bread, that new, delicious, richly-flavored bread—has brought quick, soothing relief to thousands of constipation sufferers—both young and old alike. There is no other bread like this extraordinary new loaf. It is made by a secret process indorsed by physicians and, when eaten regularly for just a few days, it acts on the cause of common eliminative troubles by supplying the system with necessary, natural stimulants that induce regularity.

A liberal supply of pure honey, plus the whole wheat kernel and other choice ingredients recognized by authorities as health-promoting, are baked into each and every loaf of Honey Krushed Wheat Bread. Honey Krushed Wheat Bread tastes so good—not flat or woody like ordinary whole wheat breads. Many persons eat it for dessert—children clamor for more and more. MAKE THIS PLEASANT TEST. Eat this superb-tasting bread with each meal for ten days. Make this test—see your eliminative organs return to normal action again—see your vigor return and, perhaps, your complexion improve! Your grocer gets Honey Krushed Wheat Bread oven-fresh daily. Already sliced and wrapped in cellophane. Ask him for it. Baked by the St. Louis Bread Company, who also bake Toastmaster White Bread. VERDICT IN DIPLOMAT'S DEATH

Alcoholism Killed Ecuadorian Found Dead, Report Says.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Acute alcoholism caused the death of Ernesto Chacon Quirola, Ecuadorian diplomat, according to the official report from Bellevue Hospital today.

Quirola's body was found in the vestibule of a Manhattan apartment house on New Year's eve.

Former St. Louis Reporter Killed. FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 2.—Miss Evalyne Grace Connelley, formerly a reporter for the old St.

The Governor said that with a year in which to perfect an appeal as a criminal case not passed on by the Supreme Court until 18 months or longer after conviction in the lower court, and that frequently attorneys start appeal proceedings without intending to perfect them, but merely to postpone the day of imprisonment.

Old Age Pensions.

The Governor recommended that no action be taken by the Legislature on Old Age pensions until Congress decided on national plans covering the subject.

He advocated a change in the tax laws to make clear that a County Collector may in his discretion postpone the sale of property for back taxes until the taxes are delinquent for five years.

In an effort to increase revenues, he directed attention to personal property tax-dodgers and to the small revenue obtained by taxes on intangible property, notes, bonds and other securities, which he said did not exceed $125,000 a year. He asked the Legislature to enact a provision that no suit to collect on such an obligation would be entertained in any court in the State unless the tax had been paid on the security which it was sought to collect. The effect of such a law would be that no holder of a note could sue the debtor unless the holder of the note had paid all taxes due on it.

He also asked that the State Auditor be authorized to sue to collect delinquent income taxes in cases in which the county collectors had failed to perform this duty.

To relieve the Supreme Court of an overcrowded docket, he asked that the jurisdiction of the three Courts of appeals be increased in civil cases from the present limit of $7500 to $15,000.

Educational Program.

He urged a sweeping change in the higher educational system of the State, asking that the five State Teachers' Colleges, each of which is now under a separate board of managers, be placed under the Board of Curators of the State University, that each Teachers' college be made a part of the university and that diplomas from those schools be made of equal value with diplomas from the university.

He asked for an appropriation of not to exceed $100,000 for a building at Lincoln University, State school for Negroes, for the teaching of the trades.

To permit taking full advantage of the National Housing Act, he asked legislation to authorize banks and trust companies, insurance companies, building and loan associations and other investors to make insured mortgage loans and to invest in insured mortgages under the provisions of the national act.

There was no revival in the message of the Governor's fight at the special session of the Legislature a year ago for laws to permit small municipalities to erect or acquire public utility plants by the issuance of revenue bonds.

Only one vague reference to it appeared. "In the event that an additional public works program is authorized at the coming session of Congress," he said, "I shall urge that you see to it that the municipalities of the State are made legally able to take full advantage of such a program."

INSURANCE FIRM HEAD FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME

Body of Merrill L. Wanvig on Bed in Minneapolis Apartment, a Rifle in Hands.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 2.—Merrill L. Wanvig, 40 years old, president of a Minneapolis insurance firm, was found shot to death in his apartment late last night.

When discovered by H. T. Lofgren, a neighbor, Wanvig was slumped on his bed, with a bullet wound in his head and a rifle in his hands. Four men were questioned later by police.

ROOSEVELTS ENTERTAIN 80 AT WHITE HOUSE

New Year's Eve Dinner Party
Attended Mostly by "Young Married Set."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A dinner party for 80 was the way President and Mrs. Roosevelt celebrated New Year's Eve. Attended mostly by members of the "young married set," it was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, the son and daughter-in-law who have been house guests through the holidays; and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, the son and daughter-in-law who had just returned from Yuletide celebrating in Fort Worth, Tex., to be in on the New Year's fun.

It was the first big White House party at which Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, the former Miss Ruth Goggins, had been among the honor guests, for the young couple formerly lived in the West. They now have a home in Virginia, near the capital, and much of the interest last night centered in dark-haired vivacious Ruth Roosevelt.

There was a dancing divertissement and a "magic" act by J. Elder Blackledge, Indianapolis attorney. But the party didn't dance the New Year in on the East Room floor as was done last year. Instead, it changed locales in the modern manner, the young Roosevelt and their guests going on to a brilliant ball given by the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles at their home on Massachusetts avenue.

President Roosevelt had a quiet New Year's day, finishing his message to Congress. Mrs. Roosevelt had but one appointment. Miss Helen Poindexter, daughter of the Governor of Hawaii, was here to present an invitation from 38 women's organizations to visit Hawaii.

Mrs. Roosevelt was glad to receive the invitation and regretful that she would not be able to accept.

3 Killed in Truck Wreck.
LAFAYETTE, La., Jan. 2.—Three officers of the Camella Lodge, Order of Railway Conductors of the Lafayette Division of the Southern Pacific Railroad, were killed in an automobile truck crash Monday night, and a number of other persons were injured. The dead: A. B. Otis, M. G. Huff and E. B. Cloutman.

The bridegroom's parents are members of the Delaware family of powder manufacturers. The two were married Sept. 15 in Bar Harbor, Me., where both families have summer homes.

TREASURY HOLDS NUDE MOVIE

Officials Will Decide Whether Film
Can Be Shown in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A German picture, in which the heroine appears in one scene in the nude, has been subjected to the scrutiny of Treasury officials who will decide whether it is suitable for exhibition to the American public.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., wife of the Treasury Secretary, attended the pre-view last night. Her husband was unable to be present. The picture, called "Ecstasy," was impounded by the New York customs after it had been denounced by the Pope and by Fritz Mandel, millionaire husband of the heroine, who is called Hedy Kessler. Mandel is trying to suppress the film because of the scene in which his wife appears unclothed.

WIFE SUES TRUCK FIRM HEAD AND A WOMAN

Divorce, Maintenance and Alienation Actions Over Marital Troubles of Stanley Forrest

Suits for divorce and separate maintenance and another suit charging alienation of affections have been filed in St. Louis and St. Louis County as an outgrowth of the matrimonial difficulties of Stanley Forrest, head of a truck service firm operating under his name, and Mrs. Josephine Forrest, 2422 Ashland avenue, Overland.

Defendant in the alienation suit, brought by Mrs. Forrest, is the 25-year-old woman proprietor of a cafe on North Grand boulevard, who also is named in Mrs. Forrest's suit for separate maintenance, filed in Circuit Court at Clayton last week.

The Forrests were married in 1923 and separated Oct. 5, 1932, the day after Mrs. Forrest, accompanied by private detectives and police, found her husband making an early morning call on the woman at the latter's apartment. Peace disturbance charges against Forrest were later dismissed.

Forrest, leaving his wife and 4-year-old son at their Overland home, took up his residence at a St. Louis hotel, meanwhile contributing to his family's support. His wife obtained work as a bookkeeper. Last Nov. 3 he filed suit for divorce, alleging general indignities, that she had been quarrelsome, nagged him about his late arrival home and on one occasion, in a fit of temper, threw a miniature wine keg at him.

Mrs. Forrest countered two weeks later with the alienation suit against the woman, seeking $40,000 damages, citing the incident of two years earlier.

Last Thursday Mrs. Forrest filed her separate maintenance suit, on grounds of general indignities and desertion, asking for sufficient funds to provide for her and the child.

Mrs. Forrest is now receiving $60 a month temporary alimony, granted by Circuit Judge Hoffmeister in the divorce action, on application of Robert L. Aronson, her attorney.

Forrest's trucking firm is at 952 Hodiament avenue.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN DEATH OF MAN FROM AUTO FUMES

LeRoy Schilling Was Found on Floor of Car, His Head Under the Dashboard.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned at the inquest today in the death of LeRoy Schilling, electrician, whose body was found Sunday night in the garage back of his home at 4325 Gertrude avenue.

Police testified Schilling was lying on the floor of his car with his head under the dashboard and apparently had been repairing the dashboard light while the motor was running, and had been overcome by exhaust fumes.

KILLED BY DYNAMITE IN POCKET

METAMORA, Ill., Jan. 2.—David E. Murray, 70 years old, was determined to see the New Year in with a bang, so he purchased two sticks of dynamite for the occasion and put them in his coat pocket. Then in the hubbub ushering in the New Year, Murray forgot about the dynamite and thrust his still lit pipe into his coat pocket as he walked around the public square.

There was a terrific explosion and Murray was blown to bits. A night policeman 50 feet away was not knocked down by the blast.

JAPANESE SUSPECTED OF ESPIONAGE FREED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 2.—Yoshio Matsuda, Japanese naval officer found making photographs of the harbor here, left today for Washington after convincing immigration authorities he had entered this country legally.

At Washington, the Japanese Embassy planned to explain Matsuda's activities to the Navy Department today. Capt. T. Yamaguchi, Japanese Naval Attaché, said he had been assured in a telephone conversation that Matsuda was innocent of any spying.

E. L. Roux, immigration agent in whose company the Japanese remained last night, said he was instructed by Washington immigration officials to permit Matsuda to depart when he wished.

S. B. Hopkins, immigration officer at Tampa, denied Matsuda ever was officially held by the department, but had remained willingly in the presence of Roux until his identity and legal entry into this country had been established.

Matsuda was taken into custody by St. Petersburg police Monday when a member of the department observed him taking motion pictures of the waterfront from a slowly moving taxicab.

Chief of Detectives E. E. Lippard said several of the films were developed and showed scenes of the waterfront. Included, Lippard said, was a picture of the naval cruiser Trenton at anchor in the harbor.

At Washington Yoshio Matsuda was identified at the Japanese Embassy as a Lieutenant-Commander in his country's navy.

Matsuda is an accredited officer attached to the naval inspection service in New York City and was traveling in Florida during the holidays.

At the Navy Department it was said the Matsuda case was "as far as it was concerned." It was added that the officer's passport was in regular order.

RFC CHAIRMAN SEES ST. LOUIS BANKERS

Jesse H. Jones in City on Way to Washington From Houston Home.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Government's huge recovery lending agency, stopped over in St. Louis this morning, on his way to Washington. He and Mrs. Jones, who accompanied him, had been to their home in Houston, Tex., for the holidays. Jones conferred with bankers and local officials of the RFC.

In an interview with reporters at Union Station, Jones said he assumed that Congress would extend the authority of the RFC to make loans beyond the present expiration date, which is Feb. 1. He thought it would be necessary to continue making loans to railroads in 1935, but that the total sum required would not be a great burden on the Government. He pointed out that the loans to railroads so far—about $450,000,000—were comparatively small part of the total RFC loans.

Some railroads that are over-capitalized will have to be reorganized so as to reduce their fixed charges, he said, but on the whole he thought the railroad would soon be in better earning positions. Traffic of the railroads would be increased considerably through the movement of materials if there is a revival of construction, he said.

MORE THAN MILLION SEE TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE

First Prize Won by Santa Barbara's Float: Sun Shines Brightly.

By the Associated Press. PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2.—The folk and fauna of legend came to life in floral imagery yesterday and paraded before more than 1,000,000 persons. Kings and Princesses, the Vikings, Cinderella, the Fire Bird and Winged Pegasus, fashioned from Southern California flowers, moved along on 67 floats to the cheers of the multitudes, in Pasadena's forty-sixth annual Tournament of Roses parade. The setting was in happy contrast to the rains which marked last year's parade. The sun shone benignly today.

There were 20 bands. Harold Lloyd of the movies was grand marshal. He rode with bows, smiles and in an automobile decorated with yellow and red roses. As queen of the tournament, Muriel Cowan, 17 years old, rode on the Fire Bird and six comely girls were her court. Santa Barbara's float, depicting the fable of the "Jay and the Peacock" was awarded first honors, the Sweepstakes prize. More than 6,000,000 freshly cut blossoms were used in decorating the huge, intricately fashioned floats.

AUSTRIA HELPS OPEN WAY FOR FRANCO-ITALIAN PACT

Decides to Accept Guarantee of Independence by Neighboring States.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Jan. 2.—A last-minute decision by Austria to accept a guarantee of its independence by its neighboring states was said in informed French circles today to have removed one of the principal obstacles to conclusion of the projected Franco-Italian accord.

A flying trip from Geneva to Paris by M. Prugel, Austrian delegate to the League of Nations, was said to have prepared the way for the agreement.

Austria's previous reluctance to have the "succession states," Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania, members of the Little Entente and close allies of France, among the guarantors of its independence reportedly was supported by Premier Mussolini.

Pierre Laval, Minister of Foreign Affairs, will go to Rome tomorrow night to talk to Premier Mussolini in the hope of reaching a final accord on Franco-Italian relations and a joint policy on Central Europe.

Laval made his definite decision for the journey today after a conference with the French Cabinet.

KILLED IN FALL FROM LEDGE
 Man Loses Balance in Trying to Escape From Fire.
 By the Associated Press.
 BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Robert O. Patton, 51 years old, fell to his death from the sixth floor of a hotel yesterday.
 When smoke from an elevator shaft fire seeped into his room, where a New Year's party was in progress, police investigators reported, Patton made his way to a ledge outside a window. He lost his balance and fell to an alley as he tried to jump to an adjoining ledge. Grace Vinney, 25, one of the party of six, accompanied Patton along the ledge and was successful in making the jump. The others in the party remained in the room.

For Bad Cough,
Mix This Better
Remedy at Home
 Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough from colds. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and effective relief. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.
 This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and helps heal the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.
 Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as an agent for relieving throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SENATOR LONG
IN NEW DISPUTE WITH PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Gives Notice
 Concerning PWA Loans,
 So 'Kingfish' Promises
 Some 'Fireworks.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—President Roosevelt has served notice on the Huey P. Long-controlled administration in Louisiana that the State probably will have to repeal or clarify some of its laws if it wants Public Works Administration money.
 Senator Long, in return, indicated there would be "fireworks on the floor of the Senate next week. To reporters in New Orleans, he said: "I'll make my reply to that and similar other matters—you got that?"—on the floor of the Senate Monday or the first day the Senate is in session next week.
 Indications that the PWA loans might be withheld until Louisiana's debt moratorium law was clarified were seen in a letter President Roosevelt wrote to Gov. O. K. Allen. He suggested a "clear and unequivocal enunciation of the policy of the Legislature in respect of enactments for the postponement of the payment of public indebtedness."
 The letter was one of a series written to governors with a view to helping states wishing to avail themselves of PWA lending. It differed from the others in that it suggested "clarification" of legislation.
 The PWA has held up payments on 60 Louisiana projects following the enactment in November of a law providing for a two-year moratorium on public and private debts over $8 except those owed cities, the State or Federal Government.
 At the same session was passed a law giving the Long group control of the New Orleans Sewage and Water Board. One of the PWA projects held up since November is a $2,500,000 loan and grant for the New Orleans sewage system.
 In Baton Rouge, Gov. Allen said he knew nothing about a letter from the President.
 "The only letter I got," he said, "was after the Legislature, and was about only one bill, which was amended."
 Long backed Roosevelt in 1932 but later relations became strained. Federal patronage has gone to Long's opponents in Louisiana.
PRISONER KILLS POLICEMAN
AND IS SHOT TO DEATH
 Wounds Another Officer When Riding in Patrol Car at Hamilton, O.
 HAMILTON, O., Jan. 2.—Arrested on a charge of attempting to force his attentions on women at a lodge hall dance, Elmer Adams, 40 years old, yesterday shot and killed one of his captors, wounded another and was himself killed.
 A sub-patrolman, Earl Grubbs, arrested Adams at the Eagles' Temple. He called the police patrol car and he and Patrolman Henry Hart rode in the back with the prisoner.
 Grubbs told Hart he had taken two pistols from the prisoner when Adams whipped out a third weapon, shouted "yes, but you didn't take this one," and began firing.
 Grubbs, shot in the chest, was killed. Hart fell, wounded seriously, in the side. Urban Leugers, driving the car, stopped and reached for his pistol. He shot and killed Adams before the prisoner could escape.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 2.—The Rhode Island Democratic Party today announced its plan to gain control of the state government after the next election. The party's platform called for a new constitution, a new state court, and a new state government.

The move, made by the Democrats, was a surprise to many observers. The party's plan was to win a majority in the state legislature and then to call for a new constitution. The party's platform also called for a new state court and a new state government.

It was a hectic first move yesterday for the Democratic Party in Rhode Island. The party's plan was to win a majority in the state legislature and then to call for a new constitution.

Old-time Democrats waited a life time for the move. The party's plan was to win a majority in the state legislature and then to call for a new constitution. The party's platform also called for a new state court and a new state government.

A joint meeting of the legislature and the state court today called for a new constitution. The party's plan was to win a majority in the state legislature and then to call for a new constitution.

Just before 1 o'clock, the much delayed of Gov. Green's legislature adjourned. The party's plan was to win a majority in the state legislature and then to call for a new constitution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The United Mine Workers of America today gathered in the city of Washington to hear the testimony of the soft-coal code.

DEMOCRATS MAKE OVER GOVERNMENT IN RHODE ISLAND

Gaining Unexpected Majority in Legislature, They Take Control of Supreme Court.

DECLARES G. O. P.
SEATS VACANT

Also Reorganize State Machinery—In Saddle by Denying Senate Places to Two Republicans.

By the Associated Press.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 2.—Rhode Island Democrats reorganized their State Government today after gaining unexpected control of the Legislature, by ousting the Supreme Court and consolidating governmental agencies.

The Democrats seated three of their number on the Supreme Court bench where no Democrat has served for more than 40 years, reduced some 80 State agencies to 11 commissions, and abolished the Providence Board of Safety.

The move, made possible when the Democrats suddenly gained a majority in the State Senate, surprised even the Democrats themselves, and left the Republicans seemingly too bewildered to make an immediate counter-move.

The Democrats, in vacating the Supreme bench, took advantage of a law passed about 35 years ago by the Republicans, permitting the Legislature to vacate any judgeship on the Supreme Court.

National Guardsmen paced the corridors of the State House carrying bayoneted rifles and State Police and Providence patrolmen assisted in maintaining order as the news spread and hundreds rushed to the capitol.

It was a hectic session from the first move yesterday, when the Legislature refused to seat two Republican Senators, to the early hours of today, when Gov. Theodore Francis Green was inaugurated for a second term.

Old-time Democrats wept, hugged each other and shouted, "We've waited a life time for this."

The move began with a recount of the Portsmouth and South Kingstown votes for State Senator. The Democratic candidates, who had been declared elected, were sworn in and took their seats, giving the Democrats a 22-20 control of the upper branch.

They already held a 58-42 majority in the House, and measures were rushed through vacating the five seats in the Supreme Court, abolishing the Providence Board of Public Safety and consolidating the governmental agencies.

Congressman Made Judge.
A joint meeting of both branches of the Legislature elected new Supreme Court Justices, and all but Congressman Francis B. Condon, who was on the way from Washington, were sworn in at once.

Edmund W. Flynn, Providence Representative, was named Chief Justice, and the other associates, with Condon, are William W. Moss, First Assistant Attorney-General; Hugh B. Baker and Antonio A. Capostoto, Superior Court Justices. Only Baker and Capostoto are Republicans.

The act consolidating the governmental agencies was vague in form, but it was believed it would result in hundreds of Republicans losing State jobs.

Just before 1 o'clock this morning, the much delayed inauguration of Gov. Green was held, and the Legislature adjourned until 1 p. m., signed the Supreme Court and Safety Board measures soon after they had been passed.

HEARING ON SOFT COAL CODE OPENS TODAY IN WASHINGTON

Two Amendments, One Proposed by NRA and Other by Operators, to Be Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Hundred of operators and leaders of the United Mine Workers of America gathered today to tell NRA what they thought was wrong with the soft coal code and what should be done to correct it.

A public hearing was held on two proposed amendments, one from a group of operators and one from the NRA itself. Both are intended to stop what they term "price chiseling."

Some large operators have said that if small operators continue to sell below code prices the wage structure will collapse. Some of the small operators reply that the code authorities have made prices too high and, by not considering their problems, have endangered their businesses.

One group of producers proposed an amendment to stop the making of future contracts with consumers calling for less-than-code prices. The NRA has proposed to take over the fixing of prices for the entire industry until June 16 at least.

WINS PRIZE FOR DISCOVERY OF HOW AIR ABSORBS SOUND

Prof. Vern O. Knudsen Finds That Oxygen in Air Muffles High Notes.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 2.—Vern O. Knudsen has won the annual $1000 science prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science for a discovery in sound transmission.

Heretofore it was believed that sound was absorbed by the vibrating motion of the air or other molecules. Knudsen's discovery is that part of a sound is muffled by the spin of the atoms of air and other gases.

His experiments show a surprising power of pure oxygen to absorb almost completely some of the higher notes of the human voice and many of the high notes of musical instruments. In real air there is only 20 per cent oxygen, and the rest of the mixture, particularly humidity, modifies the oxygen effect. The other substances also have their own individual effects on sound.

Knudsen, 41-year-old professor of physics at the University of California at Los Angeles, helped Hollywood motion picture studios with their early troubles in sound reproduction. He finished that work six years ago.

CARDINAL BOURNE, ENGLISH CATHOLIC PRELATE, DIES

Archbishop of Westminster Succumbs to Heart Disease in London at Age of 73.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 2.—Francis Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, died early yesterday of heart disease. Ever since his return from a visit to the Vatican in 1932, he had been in ill health. He was 73 years old when he died.

The churchman's last public appearance was at Christmas day services in Westminster Cathedral. In recent years Cardinal Bourne had frequently denounced the attitude of Soviet Russia toward religion. He urged Catholics throughout the world to seek to improve the situation of Russian Christians.

It is expected Cardinal Bourne will be buried beneath the altar of Galilee Chapel at Stedmins.

BANK OF FRANCE HEAD QUITS

Out of Sympathy With Loan Policy of Government.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Jan. 2.—Clement Moret, Governor of the Bank of France, resigned today because he was out of sympathy with the Government policy favoring short term loans.

The Cabinet approved the appointment of Jean Tannery, Director of the Sequestered Funds Division, as successor to Moret.

Mizrachi Organization Election.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Jan. 2.—Rabbi Wolf Gold of New York was re-elected president of the Mizrachi Organization of America yesterday and in an address at the final session of the Mizrachi-Zionist convention said that the Zionist ideal of making Palestine a refuge for tens of thousands of persecuted Jews would be realized this year. A. L. Gellman, St. Louis, was elected honorary vice-president.

FOREIGN SERVICE PAY ADJUSTED TO MEET EXCHANGE

Losses of 10,800 U. S. Employees Are Estimated at 40 Pct., Due to Money Depreciation.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Henceforth the 10,800 employees of the United States Government stationed in foreign countries will receive a more equitable repayment of losses they suffer through exchange fluctuation.

Army, Navy, foreign service and other Government employees assigned to duty in foreign countries—following revaluation of the dollar—suffered losses estimated at 40 per cent by exchange until President Roosevelt issued an executive order providing for repayment of part of their losses.

Under that system basic exchange rates for each country—computed from a three-year average—were specified and employees were reimbursed on that basis.

Studies and surveys carried on by Wilbur J. Carr, assistant Secretary of State, established that the three-year period used gave an inequitable repayment in many countries. In the new regulations effective today the President has directed that new basic exchange rates, based on a five-year average, be used in computing losses.

Computation of the basic rates on a five-year average is expected to benefit employees in all foreign countries except in Great Britain and China.

The new rate is slightly lower for those countries and will result in a smaller repayment of exchange losses. Officials here said, however, that employees assigned to those nations will still receive what is considered an equitable repayment.

Approximately one-half the Government employees involved are stationed in China or in Chinese waters, with the Consular Service, Fifteenth U. S. Infantry at Tientsin, or Asiatic fleet.

RUSSIA ENDS USE OF BREAD CARDS; PRICES INCREASED

400 New Shops Opened in Moscow; Special Rate to Workers Abolished.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Jan. 2.—Soviet Russia was without bread cards today for the first time in five years.

Special favors formerly extended to workers through reduced prices in the closed shops were abolished and the public was served in the greatly increased number of commercial bread stores. Four hundred new kiosks were opened in Moscow to supplement the 1200 old shops.

All of the stores have been re-furnished and the attendants were dressed in sanitary costumes. More than 50 kinds of bakers' products were offered in the larger establishments.

Fifteen skilled bakers have been summoned from other jobs and 25,000 other additional employees were engaged.

Ordinary white bread now sells for 90 kopecks a pound as against the old bread card price of 54 kopecks. Ordinary black bread now is 50 kopecks a pound as against a bread card price of 26 kopecks. The goal for pig-iron production this year is 12,500,000 tons as against 10,500,000 tons produced in 1934. Coal production is set for 112,200,000 tons as against 93,500,000 tons mined last year.

A general average of 19 per cent increase is fixed for the heavy industry.

CAROL SLIGHTS SOVIET ENVOY

Russian Invited to Palace at 3 P. M.; King Leaves at 1.

By the Associated Press.
BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 2.—King Carol celebrated the New Year yesterday by opening his new palace and diplomats came to wish him well, all except the Soviet Minister.

The Russian envoy received an invitation, but his was for 3 p. m., although other diplomats arrived at noon. The King departed for Sinaia at 1 p. m. Informed of this by friends, the (Soviet) envoy sent his chauffeur to make inquiries before taking the chance of finding no one at the palace. Official regrets were expressed but diplomatic circles awaited the outcome of the incident with much interest.

Official Mexican Explanation Of School and Economic Policy

President Cardenas Says Aim Is to Prepare Future Generations for Rational System That Will End Exploitation.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO, D. F., Jan. 2.—President Lazaro Cardenas, in a New Year's message to the nation last night said efforts had been made to bribe military leaders with "promises of power and money" to turn against the Government but the loyalty of the army leaders had thwarted the scheme.

The President said a propaganda campaign was being carried on abroad "with the connivance of foreign Catholic elements" to turn public opinion against Mexico because of the Government's educational activities against the "blind clerical oppression."

Gen. Cardenas described the propaganda as an "old maneuver" and said that on previous occasions the Government of Mexico had been able to convince the world and the public opinion of America that its socialistic activities were aimed at "economic liberation, within the most justified of human aspirations."

He promised strict observance of the laws on religion, however, and said measures considered necessary in this connection will be presented to Congress.

The Government's educational policies, Cardenas said, will be directed toward preparing future generations for an economic system which will end exploitation as well as giving them a "rational conception" of the universe.

Under the economic plans he said the Government would seek the development of natural resources by Mexican rather than foreign companies. This, he declared, would destroy the "colonial economic exploitation" under which the country has lived for many years. He said a "same" tariff policy would be adopted.

RUSSIAN SAYS BRITAIN HOLDS KEY TO POLITICAL SITUATION

Japan's Abrogation of Naval Pact Discussed in Soviet Papers.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Jan. 2.—Whether 1935 will bring peace or war in Europe and the Far East was the subject of a lively editorial discussion in Soviet papers yesterday as a result of the Japanese abrogation of the Washington naval treaty.

With Germany and Japan both trying to make alliances, Karl Radek, Russian publicist, said in Pravda, "Great Britain holds the key to the European and Far Eastern situation. No doubt Great Britain still is interested in keeping peace. This is one of the reasons she supported the idea of an Eastern regional pact but there is danger for Great Britain if the balance of power and possible alliances are lost. In that case England would release the forces of war which would have only one consequence—the breaking up of the British Empire."

GERMANY HOPES ONLY FOR PEACE, HITLER ASSERTS

He Informs Diplomats That He Seeks to Concentrate on Internal Reconstruction.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler gave the diplomats in world Powers assurance yesterday of Germany's peaceful intentions under an international golden rule. Immediately afterward, he received the homage of Nazi Storm Troopers and hundreds of civilians.

He told the diplomats who called on him at the presidential palace: "No country wants peace more than Germany. After difficult years of need and suffering, she seeks repose to concentrate all her powers on internal reconstruction and, for her right to live, asks only the same acknowledgement and attention from other countries that Germany itself offered. . . . I see no international problems which cannot be solved through understanding co-operation."

Quickly changing from the formal dress and sober mien of his diplomatic reception to a brown shirt and an air of happiness, Hitler stood for 30 minutes returning the salutes of 3000 Berlin Storm Troopers, provincial police, and Hitler-crested marines and motorcycle corps troopers. All except the Storm Troopers were outfitted as if for war. The Storm Troopers themselves carried full field equipment, but no rifles.

A great demonstration of fervor was given by the throng which packed the huge plaza before the Chancellery. They repeatedly cheered Hitler, often breaking through the cordon of 1000 police to get near their leader.

Conjecture had it that Hitler paid today's honor to the Storm Troopers because he wanted to demonstrate his abiding loyalty to the Nazi party. The fact that he received the salutes of the Storm Troopers without receiving the usual New Year's day calls from Cabinet members was also noted.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"We, the People, Are to Blame."
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A select committee of one, self-delegated to select your leading editorial of 1934, I would assuredly select one of the two entitled "We, the People, Are to Blame." You held aloft a mirror so that the people might see themselves momentarily. If we, the people, could see ourselves as we really are in the mirror of American ideals, the national garments of 1935 would be sackcloth and ashes.

The great American pastime during the years just past was gambling; gambling in Wall street, Chestnut street, farm real estate rows and in gambling joints of all kinds. Pastime No. 1 today is "hunting for goats." Our economic troubles can only be explained by the kind of goats we find. There was the great goat Hoover and all the lesser goats, including Mellon; there were the Charlie Mitchells of Banking Row, and Insull of Utility Row. With but two years of the New Deal era expired, numerous goats have been sacrificed on the altar of the new national pastime, and it is being rumored that a great goat for future sacrifice is now being groomed.

It is not that the American people are stupid. Any people that can qualify as many people as bridge experts after taking only the "short courses" can hardly be classified as dumb. They are just too busy with "other things." Rest assured, and this is our hope, that when thinking and studying because they want to know, becomes a fad; becomes the "thing" to do—a sort of miniature golf or treasure-hunt done—then watch our smoke.

The fatal error is in thinking that just because we can get away with permitting the health to be the concern of the men of medicine; our educational problems the business of the educators; our production of the goods we need to the business man; our religion to the men of the pulpit; that we could in the same manner delegate our duties as citizens—our citizenship—to a class of beings known as politicians. Two things the people cannot do: they cannot leave economics, that science which deals with the business of making a living, to the economist-politician, nor delegate their citizenship to self-seeking politicians.

May you hold up the mirror so that the people might see themselves as they should be seen during 1935. The new editorials headed "We, the People, Are to Blame." N. D. A.

A Government Killing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN a Government agent is killed, Government officials at once start to work to convict the person responsible for the killing. When one of their men kills anyone else, they at once start to work to free their man, no matter how guilty he may be.

In St. Louis, some time ago, a Government agent killed an innocent citizen of this city in about as stupid a manner as was possible, yet we have no one connected with the city government who has come to the front with any real action to spend this case up and see that justice is done.

FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE loan made by the FFG to the First National Co. so ably condemned in your editorial, "The Taxpayer to the Rescue," measures to a nicety the infinitesimal distance to which the money changers have been driven from the temple. It also illustrates forcibly the helplessness of the thousands of taxpayers when compared to the action which can be secured in financial channels by the organized few.

It is now more than five years since the beginning of the depression and, up to this time, except for an investigation started a few months ago, the millions of investors in first mortgage real estate bonds of various and sundry issues have received no recognition from the Government. Thrifty citizens invested some 12 to 20 billions of dollars in these bonds and the basic buying power of the country will remain tightly sealed until this vast hoard of frozen assets is in process of liquidation.

Had this real estate bond problem been given the attention the huge sum involved would justify, men of high integrity could have been appointed to take over control of the properties. Loss to bondholders through possible mismanagement of so-called protective committees would have been eliminated at the source. With the real estate under Government control, reasonable advances could be made to bondholders on deposited bonds and such future payments as wise management and careful liquidation would permit.

JOSEPH REDMOND.

A Dangerous Intersection.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OUR forceful stand against the hit-and-run course is most commendable; and, of course, its potency cannot be escaped here in East St. Louis, where the fools and their autos have not yet been parted.

One can't help feeling that the State highway authorities are lending encouragement to this same evil when they stupidly remove stop signs from such busy intersections as that at Twenty-fifth and Bond where the hourly hazards to human life are self-evident.

EAST SIDER.

WILL HISTORY REVERSE ITSELF?

In view of the convening of the Missouri Legislature at Jefferson City today for its biennial session of law-making, it is pertinent to recall our observations on meetings of the Legislature in the recent past.

On Dec. 14, 1932, during the last special session, we said:

There is no more amazing spectacle in the political history of Missouri than the way in which the present special session of the State Legislature is deliberately forfeiting its opportunity to make amends, in part at least, for the utterly faithless performance of the regular session.

On April 2, 1933, near the close of the last regular session, we said:

On the eve of adjournment, the current session of the Missouri Legislature stands indicted for compiling the worst legislative record within memory.

On May 3, 1931, at the end of the regular session of that year, we said:

Failure to pass the drivers' license bill is a grave debt which will continue to be a lasting legislative obligation until met. Thoughtful opinion also regrets that the judicial council bill—a studied, scientific plan for accomplishing necessary reform of our court procedure—was not passed.

On May 28, 1929, at the close of the regular session of four years ago, we said:

The Governor ought always to be an expert in the public affairs of his state, and this was what Gov. Caulfield was. The platform on which he ran for the office and his program for the Legislature understandingly epitomized the needs of Missouri. Yet the Legislature has far from met these expectations.

After reviewing this record, can any thinking citizen of Missouri look to the present session with optimism? Session after session, our duly elected lawmakers have assembled at the State Capitol only to ignore the welfare of the people who chose them and who pay their salaries. So far as State government in Missouri is concerned, the refusal time and again of the Legislature to enact needed measures, while doing the bidding of special interests inimical to the public welfare, has made a mockery of the principle of government by elected representatives.

When the Fifty-seventh General Assembly convened two years ago, the results of the political overturn of 1932 were readily apparent. The political complexion of both houses had changed, raising the hope that with responsibility for legislation placed in new hands, the law-making branch would at last respond to the needs of the rank and file instead of to the beck and call of selfish private interests. What happened? The sorry story of a rejected opportunity is written for all time against the record of the present State administration.

The last thing we intend to do is to raise false hopes about the session now under way, but let us suppose that it should set about to serve the needs of the people. If it did this, it would promptly pass a bill providing for permanent registration, so Missouri voters might enjoy the conveniences and economies which those of other states enjoy under permanent registration. Our legislators would go to work to reform the criminal code in order to make it applicable to present-day conditions. They would enact a State automobile drivers' license statute with provision for revocation and thus afford an effective means for checking the carnage on the streets and highways. They would change the primary date from August, which is a month wholly unsuited to a political function so important as nominating candidates, to the spring or fall. They would authorize a scientific survey of the State Government with a view to modernizing it in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Our lawmakers would go on to approve other measures which have been before past sessions of the Legislature and turned aside. They would enact a statute providing for conservation of the beautiful rivers and streams of Missouri—one of the State's chief assets. They would approve the county planning enabling measures such as a number of progressive states have placed in force. They would place a curb on the "will racket." They would forbid the operation of street cars in metropolitan centers by one man and thereby eliminate a condition which has resulted in the loss of many lives.

All this is old business. Taking up new business, our legislators would revise the hodge-podge liquor law which was enacted by the last Legislature, and repeal the conflicting 3.2 per cent beer law. They would establish a State planning board for assembling information about the State's resources and their prospects for the future. They would authorize the payment of the State income tax in installments. They would devise an effective check on the ball bond evil.

These are things the new Legislature might do. They constitute a minimum of work to be done, if it has any expectation of serving Missouri.

FAR-FETCHED LEGAL STRATEGY.

For an example of far-fetched legal strategy, it would be difficult to surpass that concocted by the lawyers for the State in the Hauptmann case. They purpose to contend that the former German soldier killed the Lindbergh baby because of the hatred for the United States his war service engendered. That would be like prosecuting a John Dillinger for killing a policeman on the ground that the defendant had an aversion for the color of blue in the policeman's uniform.

MR. TINKHAM'S "AUDACIOUS INTRIGUE."

It is impossible to take seriously the charge of Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts that membership of the United States in the International Labor Organization is an "audacious intrigue" which has taken this country into the League of Nations "by the back door." As was widely pointed out last summer when American membership was formally declared, the International Labor Organization, while having numerous contacts with the League, carefully guards its autonomous status. Other countries have been members of the specialized organization without being members of the League.

American membership in the I. L. O. is especially appropriate because this country, more than any other, perhaps, was responsible for its formation. From the beginning, American talent and sympathy have figured in its work as an agency for co-operative enterprise in study of labor problems. Many Americans have served on its committees and research staffs. By joining the I. L. O., the United States did not do much more than formally approve a relationship already practically existent.

The wonder is that the excitable isolationist from Boston so long held his peace on this subject. As for membership in the League of Nations, we believe we are safe in assuring him that if and when the United States enters the League, it will be by the front door and with complete understanding of the step.

REVIVING THE CONSTRUCTION BUSINESS.

In the major strategy of the administration, the need for reviving the construction industry bulks large. This is not only because construction has been the worst hit of all large industries, but because its revival is deemed necessary before any real recovery is possible. In the last depression of 1920-22, construction began to pick up several months before business in general.

How important construction is to the national economy is shown by the fact that it had, prior to the depression, a turnover of about 11 billion dollars annually, a sum equal to one-eighth of the total national income, to more than twice the value of the annual automobile output and almost twice as much as the annual gross intake of all our railroads. In the five years of 1928-33, construction fell off 75 per cent, destroying the livelihood of thousands of construction companies and employees, and likewise those in approximately 50 allied industries.

No doubt, the great building boom ending in 1928 resulted in a surplus of many types of structures—office buildings, industrial plants, apartment hotels, etc. It is not likely the revival of construction can be based on more of these. Hence, the administration is looking to the building of small homes. As against a general construction decline of 75 per cent, the building of small homes has decreased 90 per cent.

We are unaware of the administration's plans to stimulate home building. Labor, material and financing costs in this field are so high as to be discouraging. It is doubtful, moreover, that either union labor, highly organized in the building trades unions, or construction and material capital can be induced to make the considerable concessions necessary to start a boom in home building.

What the building industry needs is the application to it of mass-production methods, which, elsewhere, have made inexpensively available to the consumer such things as the automobile, the automatic refrigerator and the radio. Some months ago, President Sloan of General Motors, in an illuminating article in the Atlantic Monthly, explored the possibilities of mass production in home building and concluded not only that it is entirely feasible but that it is definitely on the agenda of the future.

Home building in its main aspects has remained static for 400 years, despite new methods of manufacture and the invention and perfection of new materials, such as aluminum alloys. Why this is so it is not necessary to analyze. But it is absurd to suppose that a people as energetic and progressive as we are should be content with old construction ideas when new ones are at hand and crying for use.

The home of the future will be cheap to build, more comfortable to live in and less expensive to operate. It will be built in factories and assembled on the site, and the assembling will require a few days, instead of a few months. It will be built of light materials, with plenty of glass to furnish light and sun rays, but it will be even more resistant to the elements than present structures are. Architects and other building experts have long ago demonstrated what can be done, and we are now only awaiting the initiative to make a beginning.

To make houses as we make automobiles might conceivably furnish the country with that great new industry for which business is hoping. Such an industry, moreover, would improve conditions of living and would contribute toward wiping out the disgraceful slum districts that deface every large city in the United States.

American business would respond to a plan for revolutionizing building methods. It is geared for such an advance. It thinks in such terms.

WHAT ONE CONGRESSMAN FAVORS.

According to the Washington Merry-Go-Round, the principal plank in the campaign of George H. Mahon, new Democratic Congressman from the largest district in Texas, was an attack on the distribution of obscene literature. According to our way of thinking, the chance that Mr. Mahon will contribute materially to the solution of the world's ills is nothing to write home about.

MR. ROOSEVELT ON THE BONUS.

In a letter to a Legion post commander at Henderson, Tex., Mr. Roosevelt says that those who advocate immediate payment of the bonus for the purpose of stimulating business cannot have given the subject much thought. He proceeds to analyze the nature of the bonus certificates to show they are in the form of insurance policies, whose face value is inclusive of interest to 1945, when they fall due. The same analysis was made in a Post-Dispatch editorial of Dec. 15, entitled "What the Bonus Really Is."

If the face value of the certificates were paid out now, the effect would be to increase by approximately $2,320,000,000 the sum Congress agreed to pay the veterans in the law of 1924. That, however, would not be too big a price to pay to produce the result claimed by the bonus advocates, namely, general business stimulation. Would such a result be produced? The answer, judging from past experience, is No. Originally, bonus certificates aggregating $3,500,000,000 were issued to 3,500,000 veterans. Up to the present, 3,038,500 veterans have borrowed $1,690,000,000. Most of this borrowing has occurred since Congress in 1931 permitted lending up to 50 per cent of face value. A study made by the Veterans' Administration shows that the distribution of this sum had no visible effect upon the depression. As the President says:

This large payment resulted in little stimulation of business, and in many of the larger cities found that indebtedness created by the veterans prior to the payment was liquidated, and the money advanced to veterans went to clear that indebtedness, rather than to create new business. No doubt the same results would obtain if the balance were now paid.

Altogether, the demand for the bonus is a demand for money not yet due. In order to pay it, the Government would have to throw the budget further out of balance, or, worse, resort to inflation. The Government is being asked to depart from the policy of general relief and to accord special treatment to a particular class, many of whom are not in need.

The wild ducks have been having a high old time of it on Kansas corn.

The Way to Balance the Budget

THE effect of failing to balance a national budget over a long period of years has generally been so appalling that no one with any pretensions to foresight will feel at ease until there is an assured prospect that the American budget is being brought into balance.

To do business in the presence of great deficits is like trying to cross a mountain range on a path that skirts the edge of a precipice. The guides may be quite right when they say that beyond the mountains is a good wide road, that the path is safe if only the traveler does not lose his nerve and shake at the knees, and that he will do better to move ahead confidently at a steady pace than to creep along and become dizzy thinking how terribly far down he might fall. None the less, most men will not like it, and they will be intensely uncomfortable until they can see fairly near at hand the broad highway in the valley.

The balancing of the American budget depends upon reducing the necessity for expenditures and upon increasing the yield of taxes. This statement can be made more concrete. We have a deficit because we have to spend extraordinary amounts of money for the relief of the unemployed, and we are not taking in enough money because business is depressed. If business recovered to a point where the able-bodied unemployed were put back to work, Government expenditures would fall drastically and, with existing tax rates, Government revenues would increase enormously.

This much almost everyone would, I suppose, admit. But then there appears a sharp division of opinion between the so-called savers and the spenders. The savers say that if the administration will guarantee a balanced budget, they will promise a big business recovery. The spenders say that by pumping out funds, they can produce the recovery which will balance the budget.

I should like to suggest that this is an unreal debate. To the savers it can be pointed out that (a) we plunged into the greatest depression in modern history with a budgetary surplus, that (b) the American budget and the budgets of many other countries have repeatedly been balanced during the depression, that (c) they have not stayed in balance, that (d) experience shows that a government cannot guarantee a balanced budget during a depression nor can business guarantee recovery.

On the other hand, it can be pointed out to the spenders that (a) Mr. Hoover's expenditures in 1930 did not prime the pump, that (b) the Roosevelt expenditures in 1933-34 did not prime it enough to bring production to the level it had reached before he primed it, that (c) Britain spent great sums from 1921 to 1931 and did not overcome a chronic depression, that (d) any conceivable expenditure by the Government would be negligible in size compared with the volume of private investment, and that (e) therefore, Government spending cannot be a substitute for confident private investment.

The conclusion to be drawn is, I believe, that the way to bring the budget into balance is to bring the national economy into balance. In other words, to balance the budget and fail to take the measures which will promote recovery will get us nowhere. A continuing depression will again undo the budget. But if the measures are taken that will promote recovery, then the budget will come into balance and stay there.

The vital point is not the balance sheet for 1936 and 1937 as it may be guessed at this week, but the fundamental economic policy adopted by the administration, by big business and by organized labor. If the policies are wrong, the budget will be bad, whatever the public estimates may be; if the policies are right, the budget will be better than the Treasury will dare to predict.

It will be asked at once whether anyone is entitled to speak with assurance as to what are the right and the wrong policies. It seems to me that it is now possible to do just that, in view of our very expensive but illuminating experience under Mr. Hoover and under Mr. Roosevelt's laboratory demonstration.

Where has the depression been concentrated and whence have come the bulk of the unemployed? From the capital goods industries. According to Frederick Mills, at the low point in 1932, production in these industries fell 76 per cent from 1929. They were running at about a quarter of capacity. On the other hand, in the industries working for the ultimate consumer, production fell on the average only 31 per cent. They never ran at worse than two-thirds of their capacity.

This contrast has often been pointed out. But what is less clearly realized, though economists have dwelt upon it again and again, is that the average price of capital goods fell only a little more than 20 per cent, while the average price of consumer goods fell more than 40 per cent. The heavy industries kept up their prices, reduced their sales, limited production and thrust a vast mass of unemployment into the streets. The consumer industries reduced their prices, kept on selling goods, kept on producing them and turned out a much smaller proportion of unemployed.

The evidence is now sufficient to justify the conclusion that the high cost of capital goods is the chief domestic obstacle to recovery. This high cost is the result of monopoly and semi-monopoly, of the NRA codes, of excessive tariff protection, of the wages policy of the A. F. of L., particularly in the construction industries, and of the wages policy of the Government under PWA. The whole first phase of the New Deal was vitiated by the failure of the administration to realize that it had not only to raise agricultural prices, but that it had also to reduce prices and wages in the capital goods industries.

Instead of correcting the maladjustment, which was the heart of the depression in the United States, it corrected it somewhat for agriculture and then stabilized the remaining maladjustment through the price and wage policies of NRA and PWA. This is almost certainly the reason why no substantial recovery was made between the autumn of 1933, when NRA got in its work, and the autumn of 1934, when it collapsed.

This misguided policy of pegging prices and wages that were far out of line with all other prices and wages was the result of the pressure of three groups upon Washington.

First, there were the business men, who wanted to be given monopolistic privileges or to retain those they more or less illegally enjoyed. Second, there were the leaders of

Russia's Capitalist Bogy

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

IN "revealing" a capitalist plot to overthrow its present leadership, Soviet Russia indulges in propaganda not unfamiliar to the United States, but in reverse order. Instead of a Communist bogey, it raises a capitalist bugbear. Instead of a Red menace, it is a white menace or a hue that is the opposite to that of the U. S. S. R.

Just why capitalist countries should be aiding in the alleged movement against the usual Red scares in this country, it is put forward as a means of bringing about national unity and acceptance of the governmental status quo. The Stalin regime seeks an excuse for its purging process, by which it has executed hundreds of its alleged enemies.

It need not be stressed that the capitalist countries are hostile to this doctrine and certainly would not aid in the spreading of it. And if any of them were interested in a subversive movement to overthrow the Soviet regime, it would put up more for the purpose than the measly $2500 which the murder of Kiroff was given at an unnamed legation in Leningrad.

The capitalist scare is as flimsy as the usual Red scares in this country. It is put forward as a means of bringing about national unity and acceptance of the governmental status quo. The Stalin regime seeks an excuse for its purging process, by which it has executed hundreds of its alleged enemies.

And confessions are always obtainable in Russia to boost the Government's case. This was shown a year ago, when five British engineers were arrested on the charge of sabotage and espionage. To convict the aliens, the confession of a Russian was obtained and the Englishmen were exiled from the country.

Communist and capitalist countries are alike in accusing the other of subversive activities, though Russia with its censorship of the press will be more likely to believe a story of the capitalist plot than the United States will be to credit the many tales of Red conspiracies.

the American Federation of Labor, who wanted high wage rates for the same authority of organized employed, regardless of the amount of unemployment this created. Third, there were the enthusiasts who had seen the vision of a planned economy operated from Washington and naively imagined for a few weeks that they were establishing one by letting the monopolists of labor and of industry take possession of the machinery of government.

What is hopeful in Washington today is that this whole policy is in disrepute, and is being abandoned as rapidly as possible. Thus the New Deal is being re-dealt. The first deal was from an old unplayable pack of cards, some of them marked, which are brought down from the attic in all major depressions, dusted off and presented as the newest and latest thing. These cards promised prosperity by maintaining prices through producing and working less.

When the New Deal is re-dealt, it will, I confidently believe, or at any rate, earnestly hope, be on the principle of producing more by selling at prices that the people can pay. If that principle prevails, we shall have genuine assurance of a balanced budget. For we shall enjoy recovery in a substantial degree.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The gavel calls the Seventy-fourth Congress to order at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow, a large question mark will hang over both houses.

Can the man in the White House, powerful, popular, adroit as he is, depend on the swollen and variegated ranks of Congress which call themselves Democrats?

It is a question which time will answer. But, meanwhile, three stand out from the situation which they must deal:

1. The political lineup is completely lopsided. Democrats outnumber Republicans and independents, 3 to 1.

2. The leaders of the Democratic hardies, although elected on a New Deal ticket, privately are out of step and out of sympathy with the left-of-center policy in the White House.

3. Most of these Democratic leaders are men of mediocre ability. Far able leaders, especially in the Senate, are in the ranks of the radicals.

The net result has all the elements for heated discussion and turmoil.

On one side there is a powerful line of right-wingers, most of them veterans. They dominate committees through the rule of seniority. This is an advantage of great strategic value.

On the other side is a polyglot army of varying degrees of liberalism, ranging from earnest reformers to wild-eyed greenbackers and "share-the-wealthers." What these forces lack in parliamentary position they will more than make up in noise and turbulence.

This fact has caused sober thought around the White House. It is not so much the Old Guard Democrats who are feared as serious disturbers, but what may happen to the left bank.

This is what makes the lack of outstanding Congressional leadership so serious to the administration.

The House.

PARTICULARLY is this true in the House.

Tied and gagged by drastic rules, this chamber is not the legislative threat that in the past has not made plain. Politically it can be a big thorn in the side of any administration.

A strong, astute leadership would greatly reinforce the President's hand in avoiding pitfalls, as was repeatedly demonstrated in the last Congress. Now his one consolation is that Republican leadership is of no better quality. Also there is as yet no outstanding champion in radical ranks.

Democratic Leaders.

SPEAKER JOE BYRNS, is a veteran Tennessee machine politician who owes his elevation to No. 1 man to the fact that the White House had openly expressed private view that it preferred another. The Administration had every reason to oppose Byrns. His record as floor leader during the Seventy-third Congress was one of vacillation in crucial moments. Although now serving his fourth consecutive term, not one piece of important legislation bears the stamp of his name.

Floor Leader William B. Bankhead is co-author with his brother, John H. of the compulsory cotton crop control act. His greatest claim to fame is his daughter, Tallulah, screen and stage star. A fast-thinking and decisive parliamentarian, the Alabamian has one serious handicap—his poor health.

Sam Rayburn, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, is a vigorous, hard-hitting, long-headed Texan, and the man the Administration secretly wanted in the Speaker's chair but failed to support. Rayburn is of conservative bent, but has steadfastly supported New Deal legislation. With Senator Fletcher of Florida, Chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, he was chiefly responsible for enactment of the Stock Exchange and Securities Acts.

GOP Leaders.

BERTRAND SNELL, minority floor leader, a ponderous, slow-thinking up-state New Yorker of extreme reactionary views, who retains his party position through weight of long service and the insignificance of possible opponents. Because of his tactlessness and hair-trigger temper, Snell is not popular with his rank and file. He is known in the cloak room as "the cheese maker of Potsdam."

HARRY L. ENGLEBRIGHT, Republican whip. Although one of the younger members of the House and little known outside the chamber, is one of the cleverest parliamentarians in Congress. Englebright comes from upper California; is popular with his colleagues and when the Republicans return to power he is sure to be heard from.

JAMES M. WADSWORTH, former United States Senator, and like Snell, an up-state New York Tory. He is one of the few really able Republicans left in Congress, but his influence is undermined by ultra-Old Guard views. It is said that he is holding his seat for his son, Jim Jr., now a member of the New York State Legislature.

Liberal Leaders?

IT is a significant commentary on the new House that while it boasts many noisy "people's friends," there is no outstanding liberal leader on either side of the chamber.

There are, however, a few who are worth watching.

HENRY ELLENBOGEN, Pittsburgh Democrat, is one. Foreign born, a labor lawyer, Ellenbogen performed the miraculous feat in 1922 of beating the all-powerful Mellon machine. This year he won both the Republican and Democratic nominations. Ellenbogen is one of the most advanced economic thinkers in Congress, a hard worker, an able organizer and edgeworker on the liberal side.

THOMAS AMLE, La Follette Progressive, is returning to the House after a brief service in 1931. Although a young man, he has a long record of liberal political warfare, was a Nonpartisan League organizer, campaigned for the elder La Follette. Amle strongly favors a national third party along farmer-labor lines, is actively pushing such a program.

WILLIAM LEMKE, North Dakota Nonpartisan. A bull-voiced hanger-on, Lemke is not a potent economic thinker. He is a rabid currency inflationist, was co-author of the rrazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium act, which has been held unconstitutional by a lower court. Lemke has large political talents as a "hell-raiser," and is sure to be heard from.

The Modern Home Exposition will open in the exhibition hall of Municipal Auditorium Saturday with more than 100 exhibits designed to show St. Louis home owners how they might improve their property through the National Housing Act. Opportunities for home modernization will be shown. Rooms will be reproduced in duplicate, illustrating how an old fashioned room may be improved and modernized at a small cost. The exposition is sponsored by the city to encourage home improvements. A recent canvass by the St. Louis Better Housing Campaign resulted in pledges by home owners for the expenditure of about $100,000 in home improvements.

Millionaire and Muny Opera Bride

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. TIPPETT. The former Miss Ruth Rathell, Municipal Opera singer, and Tippet, multimillionaire oil man of Oklahoma City, Ok., were married this morning at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue. She is the 25-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Rathell of the Gatesworth Hotel.

ALTON GIRL BRIDE OF DR. G. D. ROYSTON

Former Miss Eunice H. Whitney Married to St. Louisian at Home of Her Parents.

RETIRED RAIL HEAD, WM. SPROULE, DIES

Former President of Southern Pacific on Which He Began at Freight Clerk.

MISS EUNICE HATHWAY WHITNEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitney of Alton, and Dr. Grandison D. Royston, 441 North Hanley road, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's parents.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert E. Kemper of the Alton Congregational Church.

Guests were limited to members of the two families, including Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Olin, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; their young daughter, Mary Dell, who was ring bearer and the only attendant; Dr. Royston's two sons, Grandison Jr. and Theodore; and the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. W. T. Woolridge, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Mrs. J. J. Battle, Fulton, Ark.; and Miss Mattie Royston, Little Rock. Dr. Royston's daughter, Miss Anna Mary Royston, is attending school in Korea, chaperoned by friends.

The Whitney home was decorated with baskets of white snapdragons. Blossoms and greenery banked the mantel and fireplace in the living room where the service was read, and the table for the breakfast following had a center piece of white roses.

Mrs. Royston wore a gown of bronze lame with trimmings of wine colored velvet. Her bridesmaids wore brown orchids in a shoulder corsage. She and Dr. Royston departed on a motor trip to Florida after the breakfast.

On their return they will occupy his home.

The bride is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College and of the Washington University Training School for Nursing. Dr. Royston, a Washington University medical school graduate, is associate professor of clinical obstetrics and gynecology at that school. He is one of the nine members of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

DR. JAMES L. MUDD NAMED TUBERCULOSIS CONTROLLER

Will Succeed Dr. Hyman Spector, Who Has Been Holding Two Positions.

Dr. James Linus Mudd has been appointed tuberculosis controller for the city on the recommendation of many physicians. His selection was announced by Director of Public Welfare Darr. He will succeed Dr. Hyman Spector, who was made Assistant Health Commissioner July 5, but has been holding both positions.

Salary of Dr. Mudd will be $3000 a year. He is 39 years old and resides at 4015 Maryland avenue. Graduated from St. Louis University medical school in 1923, he served at City Hospital and St. Mary's Infirmary, then spent a year in Europe, studying tuberculosis, which he has specialized. He is on the medical staffs of Mount St. Rose Sanatorium and County, St. Anthony's and Desloge hospitals.

He has served 10 years of a 35-year sentence imposed for playing Edward G. Shanahan, a Department of Justice agent.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

NEW YEAR'S day was observed by the younger set with a round of parties beginning at noon and continuing until the early hours of the morning.

Between 12 and 2 yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay, 3693 Lindell boulevard and their daughters, Miss Suzanne and Miss Lucie were at home to their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Atwood Thompson, 32 Washington terrace, gave a tea dance yesterday from 5 to 7 o'clock at the St. Louis Country Club for Mr. Thompson's daughter, Miss Sue. About 180 members of the younger set attended.

Also among the guests were Mrs. Thompson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Franco, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields III of Washington, D. C. and Mr. Thompson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cabanne Smith of Houston, Tex.

Miss Thompson will resume her studies at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., Jan. 10.

J. Frederick Schaffly Jr. and Daniel L. Schaffly, sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Schaffly, 48 Washington terrace, were hosts to the debutantes and their escorts yesterday afternoon at an eggnog party at their home. The party was given in honor of Miss Antoinette Schaffly, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schaffly, 4744 Westminster place, and cousin of the hosts, and in honor of Miss Ann Woolsey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rosa A. Woolsey, 6350 Waterman avenue. About 150 friends called at the Schaffly home between 4 and 6 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. J. F. Schaffly received with the debutantes and her two sons in a drawing room decorated with Christmas greens and holly. Miss Woolsey wore a black velvet tea gown made with a high neck front and back, and a slight train. The half sleeves were caught at the shoulders with gardenias. Miss Schaffly was attired in a two-piece gown with a black velvet skirt and chaste white blouse.

In the dining room the long table with coffee, eggnog and other delicacies were served. The table was decorated with a six-branched candelabra, which formed the centerpiece and a pair of formal silver trees. A smaller table set in the enclosed porch off the dining room bore another silver bowl of eggnog.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Seddon of McKnight road and Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. of the St. Louis Country Club grounds were also at home to their friends late yesterday afternoon.

About 70 members of the school given last night by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunt Zeibig for their daughter, Miss Effie Zeibig, a senior at Mary Institute. Preceding the party Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson Scudder gave a dinner for some of the guests honor of their daughter, Miss Isabel Scudder.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Caspari held open house New Year's eve at their home, 6951 Kingsbury boulevard. About 100 of their friends called between 8 p. m. and 8 a. m. Dr. and Mrs. Caspari have observed the advent of the new year with an evening reception for more than 25 years.

Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly, 28 Portland place, has returned from Pittsburgh, Pa., where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy Beeson and their young daughter, who was born two weeks ago. The baby has been named Dorinda for her mother, who was Miss Dorinda Kennerly.

COSTUMES assembled from attics and cellars lent a special hilarity to New Year's eve for the debutantes and their escorts who celebrated it as the guests of Mrs. Maude Scudder di Rosa and Mrs. John Overall at Deer Creek Club. They gave this "Come if you dare" party in honor of their niece, Miss Gladys McRee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee of Warson road.

Dinner was served to more than 150 guests at one long L-shaped table, decorated with large red angel vases in which bunches of bright balloons were secured. These were soon released to the rafters to increase the carnival atmosphere created by streamers of confetti, quickly unfurled, and cotton "snowballs" which fell about the ears of the revelers. A "horse" that capered in a sawdust ring; a daguerrotype photographer who turned out tinctures as fast as subjects would pose for him, and a pop-corn man, furnished side-show entertainment throughout the evening.

Large posters, caricatures of prominent members of the debutante set, covered the walls of the club and provided material for amusing speculation. Miss Jane Wells, reigning queen of His Majesty the Veiled Prophet, was pictured sitting on a golden throne, scepter in hand, crown on head, and a mermaid tail for feet. In one poster, Miss Jane Johnson, lately retired as the Veiled Prophet's queen, sat with toes turned in and a very nice, watchful, successful, in another field go through the reptilian movements of a rumba. On the opposite wall, a cardboard policeman gave chase to Bradford Shinkle and Willis Hadley, also in cardboard, as they drove through a stop light.

Grass skirts, shorts, and sailor suits predominated among the costumes. The guest of honor wore a bare-back rider's costume of black tulle. The ruffles of its full short skirt were edged with silver, and with it Miss McRee wore long black silk stockings. About her neck was a white lei.

Miss Frances Bates was one of the most strikingly attired guests. She appeared clad in a leopard skin with asparagus fern in her hair, lengthened for the occasion by the addition of false tresses.

Stratford Morton Jr., abandoned the role of football hero for the nonce and chose to play the part of a maiden from Honolulu, in grass skirt and pendant ear-rings. His head was wreathed in posies and the nails of his bare feet were highly colored.

Miss Jane Wells, Miss Nancy Mitchell and Miss Martha Ann Day, debutantes, will be the guests of honor at a theater party which Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson II of the Park Plaza and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Atwood Thompson, 32 Washington terrace, will give Friday, Jan. 14. The debutantes and their escorts, numbering about 24, will be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Seward, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson II, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Franco, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Guy Atwood Thompson. The guests will be entertained at supper and dancing at the Park Plaza after the performance.

Miss Charlotte Prescott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Prescott, 644 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, gave a mixed tea Sunday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Madeline Miller of Chicago. The visitor is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Henry Miller, 6417 San Bonita avenue.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD PIERCE MAFFITT, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skinner Maffitt, 4520 West Pine boulevard, and Mrs. Edward Pierce Maffitt's mother, Mrs. John Mulvane of New York, are holiday guests at the Park Plaza. Their young daughter, Katherine Chouteau Maffitt, is with her paternal grandparents. Another son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skinner Maffitt, Thomas Jr. of Houston, Tex., is also in St. Louis for a visit. Close friends were invited to meet the visitors Sunday afternoon at the Thomas Skinner Maffitt home.

Edward Pierce Maffitt, who is a member of the diplomatic corps, has been attached to the embassy in Stockholm, Sweden, for the past two years. After another two weeks here he and Mrs. Maffitt and their daughter will go back to New York with Mrs. Mulvane and will probably proceed later to Stockholm.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lund, 5968 West Cabanne place, returned Sunday from a short visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Lund, who are living in Bartlesville, Ok.

Mrs. William Lund was formerly Miss Betty Brown of St. Louis. Her mother, Mrs. Earl C. Brown, 6349 Ellenswood avenue, and younger sister, Miss Nancy, are continuing their holiday visit in Bartlesville, but will return to St. Louis in a few days.

Miss Jane Blackner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Guy Blackner, 6642 Kingsbury boulevard, has been spending the holidays in the South. She motored to New Orleans with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Coles of Kimberley, South Africa, who were in St. Louis for medical research, and was the guest with them last week of old friends, Mrs. Henry Cochrane and his sister, Miss Caro Chaffe, both well-known in St. Louis.

They attended a large Christmas dinner party given by Mrs. Cochrane and Friday night were guests at the Harlequin Ball, the first of the Mardi Gras festivities, which was given for the tenth consecutive time.

From New Orleans Miss Blackner and her companions motored to Florida, and will return home by way of Mobile and Atlanta, Ga., arriving the last of this week.

A theater party and a midnight supper dance at the Coronado Hotel were given last night by Mr. and Mrs. James Martin Nelson Jr., 2 Dromara road, in honor of Miss Anne Francis, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, 6484 Ellenswood avenue.

At the supper party the 40 guests were seated at one long table decorated with large bowls of pink roses and pink tapers. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson entertained a small group of their friends at another table.

The guests included: Miss Barbara Broadhead, Miss Jane Wells, Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe, Miss Gladys McRee, Miss Marjorie Boettler, Miss Anne Woolsey, Miss Peggy Cabell, Miss Roberta Pierce, Miss Kate Davis Pultizer, Miss Lois Burkham, Miss Florence Curry, Miss Lucie Mackay, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Stella Cartwright, Dines Nelson, Leers Lehmann Jr., James Payne, David R. Francis III, Ray Spencer, Arthur B. Shepley, Carson H. Carpenter Jr., Henry Carpenter, Hugh Logan, William Havercrstick, Arthur Bland Jr., Franklin Ferriss II, Edmund Thomas, James Grove, Edwin Sweet, Kent Ravenscroft, Albert Blane, John Scott, Reuben Taylor Jr., Bert Gunter, Robert S. Mitchell Jr. and Allan Goodie.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Siegel, 6417 San Bonita avenue.

MISS ANNA STEWART, TEACHER DIES AFTER HOLIDAY TRIP

Instructor for 25 Years Collapses in Midway at Union Station.

Miss Anna B. Stewart, third grade teacher at Harrison Public School, died suddenly Monday evening of a heart attack suffered at Union Station following her return from a holiday visit to Chicago. She was 57 years old.

Miss Stewart was met by her brother, Police Captain Samuel I. Stewart, with whom she resided at 4280 Clarence avenue. They were chatting in the station midway when she collapsed. She was taken to De Paul Hospital and pronounced dead.

A graduate of the old St. Louis Normal School, Miss Stewart taught school for 25 years. Previous to her assignment to Harrison School she taught at Fremont and Carr Lane Schools. Surviving besides Capt. Stewart are two other brothers, Leslie and Adelbert. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the Hermann Mortuary, 2161 East Fair avenue, to Oak Grove Cemetery.

Closing Time for Foreign Mail. Closing hours for trans-Atlantic mail, at the Main Postoffice, follow: Parcel post for Great Britain and full European mail, 9 o'clock tonight; full European mail, 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

mund, 225 East Swoon avenue, Webster Groves, will give a dance tonight at the Monday Club of Webster Groves for their three daughters, Miss Catherine, Miss Christine and Miss Elizabeth Siegmund. The club has been decorated with garlands of smilax and the table holding the punch bowl will be decorated with white flowers. About 200 members of the college set have been invited. Mr. and Mrs. Siegmund will be assisted in entertaining the young people by Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Bittmann, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hardaway.

Miss Elizabeth Siegmund, a student at Ward-Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn., is home for the holidays. Miss Christine Siegmund attends Washington University.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth O'Carroll, 339 North Taylor avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. O'Carroll of Dublin, Ireland, and Harold Joseph Tuthill, son of Harry Joseph Tuthill, 102 South Elizabeth avenue, Ferguson, took place this morning at 8 o'clock in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of the St. Louis Cathedral. The Rev. Mark Carroll officiated.

Mrs. Lawrence Mullen was maid of honor and Dr. John J. Hennelly was best man. The bridal party stood before an altar decorated with clusters of white pompons and lighted by white tapers.

The bride wore a gown of ivory velvet made on long clinging lines. There were long tight sleeves of the velvet and a skirt that flared into a short train. She wore a small ivory toned velvet hat with a white tulle net veil. Her flowers were brides roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Mullen was gowned in royal blue crinkled crepe. The gown was designed with long sleeves and a high neckline trimmed with gold clips at the shoulders. She wore a large blue felt hat banded with gold ribbon and carried Joanna Hill roses. After the ceremony a small wedding breakfast was served at the Missouri Athletic Association.

Following the honeymoon in the South Mr. Tuthill and his bride will live in St. Louis. He is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity. His bride is a graduate of Loyola College, Dublin.

ALABAMA'S PASSES YIELD 29-TO-13 VICTORY OVER STANFORD

Howell-to-Hutson Air Attack Too Much for Cards; 85,000 Attend

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 2.—Open that page once more in the book of football revelations and add under these names: Dorais to Rockne; Wyman to Baston; Friedman to Oosterbaan, those of HOWELL TO HUTSON.

And let the last stay in capital letters because it should top the list of two-man combinations in football to make history and to make for the total eclipse of the west in 1934 annals at least.

It explains in three words just how and why Stanford, rated among the leading three of the nation went down to a stunning defeat yesterday to Alabama before 85,000 persons in the annual Rose Bowl classic here by the score of 29 to 13.

What the air routes have done to land travel in the line of national transport this pair did to prove that the pass is more potent than the carry, the arm mightier than the torso or the foot.

All Howell and Hutson. Dixie Howell, a blonde, lithe speed burner and Don Hutson, a loose, speedy end gave Western hopes its final key punch of the year. Howell of Hafford, Ala., Hutson from Pine Bluff, Ark., taught the mighty slopes of the Pacific that in the back country down South they have decided they will take this football business in hand and do something about it.

Twenty-two points inside of 13 minutes and all in the second quarter. Seven more when Stanford got back to the threat stage—that's all. As Paul said to Dizzy in the Dean days of baseball "you curve 'em dizzy and I'll get 'em daffy," so did this sensational duo confound and all but rout a fine Stanford team, one of the best the West had ever produced and one that went down fighting mightily if ineffectively.

Years back when the pass was a sucking, it was Rockne and Dorais on the plains of the West Point that amazed, confounded and utterly routed Army with the expert use thereof. Wyman and Baston were a deadly pair at Minnesota and Friedman and Oosterbaan the terrors of the Big Ten circles in their days at Michigan.

But these other combines had no such formidable opposition as Dixie Howell and Don Hutson faced in their achievement. Stanford had been warned, prepped against them and there was nothing that Stanford did about it because there was nothing that anyone could do about it. Daffy in his accuracy, Howell passed to any spot, and when Hutson wasn't taking them, Bryant, the other end, or Angelich, the halfback, was.

Stanford Switches Defense. In complete bewilderment Stanford switched its defense so that at times only five men were on the

Southerners Start Air Attack After Westerners Get Seven-Point Lead

But soon they switched to passing. A beautiful 30-yard return of a punt put the tide in position to open up and Howell started. None of that 20-yard fade to throw. From a short punt formation Howell threw them, not backing up more than two yards at any time. They were speedy and deadly. Short ones, long ones—it didn't matter. The pair completed five out of six for a total of 123 yards, had another taken away on a penalty.

Along came Howell's understudy, a chap named Riley, to leave another 54 yards to Hutson for another touchdown. Only three seconds to go in the first half when they pulled this crusher.

In the fourth period they pulled their last one and it gave 'Bama its fourth touchdown on a gain of 60 yards. Hutson got behind the defensive men and took it on the hip with the ease of an acrobat juggling pins.

Cardinals March to Score. Stanford left the field at half-time with the score 22 to 7. They came back to show their power and in a straight march with Grayson, Van Dellen and Hamilton carrying the ball, scored again. Once more they began a march. Nine points to tie and everyone aghast at their great fight, their lack of quit. Down the field they started ripping off first downs. Came a second down play that needed seven yards.

Grayson took it, swung to his right after a fake buck into the line and swung into the clearing. Gandy, a substitute end, blocked out of the play but still on his feet, reached across the body of his blocker. His right hand caught Grayson on the cheek, slipped off but spun the great Stanford fullback off balance, to his knees, without gain. That fourth gain on third down, and it was intercepted by Smith, a great quarterback from Alabama.

And then there Stanford's great threat was really ended. Its pass attack was never much, and made to look less than that by the perfection of Alabama's. Most all of Hamilton's passes were not only short of the receiver, but close to interception. Maentz, in the fading moments of play, showed the only pass ability of the big Cardinal team.

One of his long passes plopped into Williams' arms on Alabama's 10-yard line—in and right out, as Williams dropped it with nobody to stop him from a touchdown.

Stanford's pass defense was faulty, you can say, but get many to agree with you, but the accuracy of Howell and the uncanny ability

Dixie Howell to Get a Tryout With Texas League Club

By the Associated Press. BEAUMONT, Tex., Jan. 2.—DIXIE HOWELL's exploits in the Rose Bowl game yesterday may make a pitcher instead of an outfielder out of him when he makes his professional baseball debut.

The Alabama gridiron star has been signed as a rookie fielder by the Beaumont Exporters.

Rube Stuart, owner of the club, listened to the account of the Rose Bowl game and then commented:

"If that fellow can throw as many strikes with a baseball as he does with a football, we'll have to make a flinger of him."

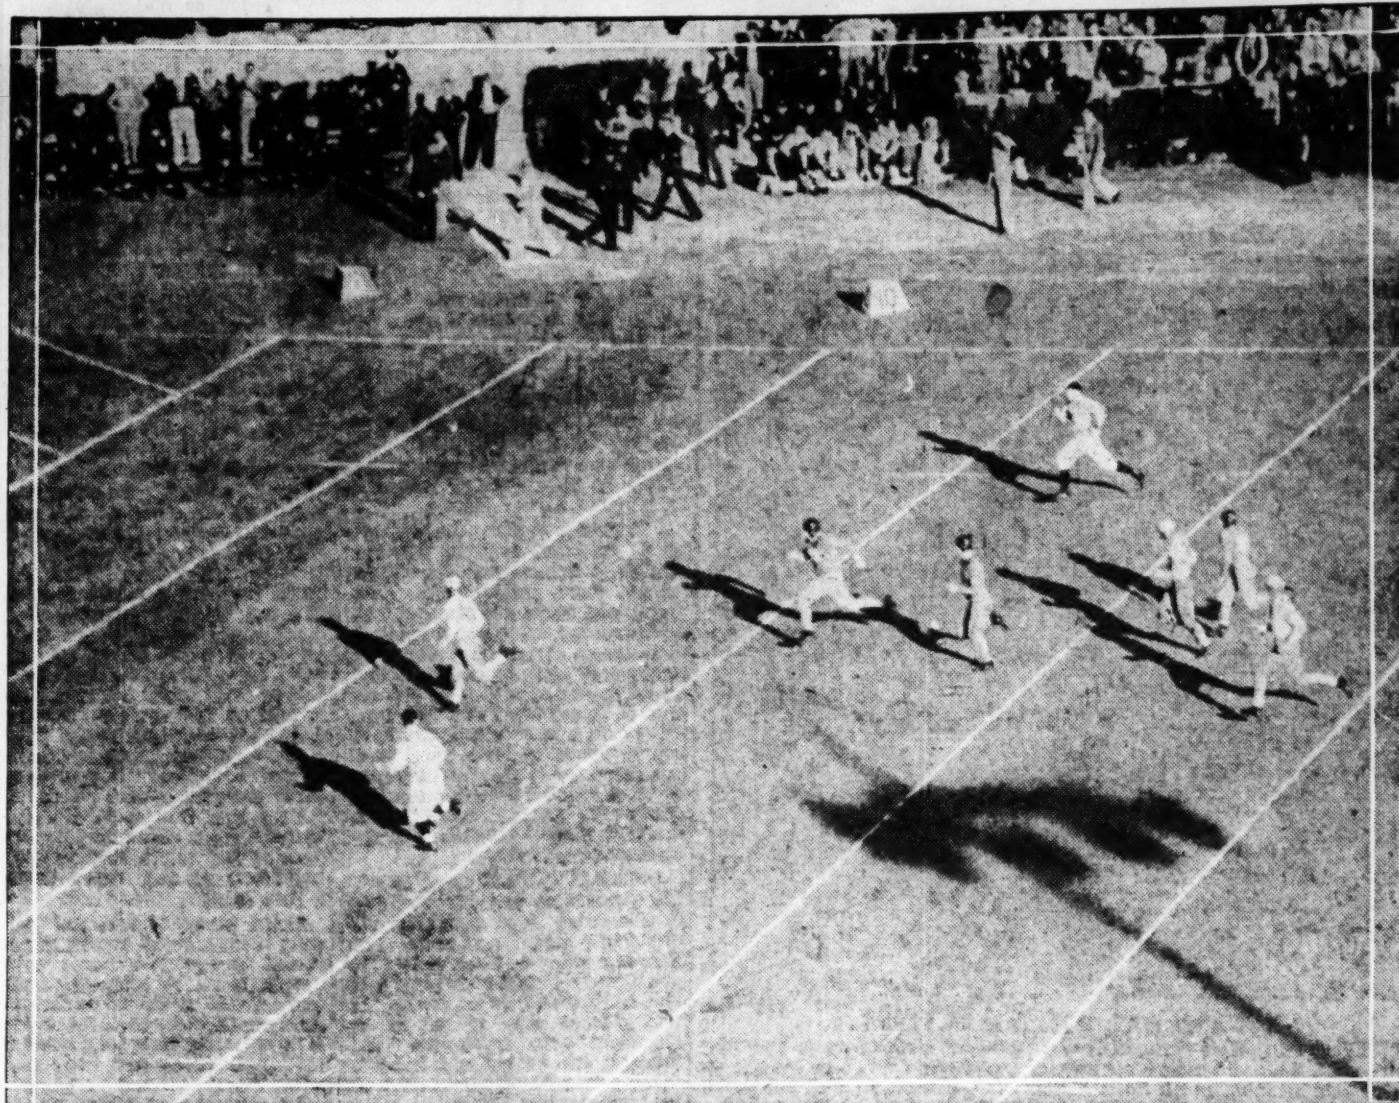

of Hutson and Bryant to be on the spot for those floaters was amazing. It was rhythm in speed-perfection, and all that.

It took a great team to beat Stanford and Alabama was that team. Stanford had more power and consistency with the running plays. The lines were even with Stanford's ends having a slight edge on defense. Moscrip and Topping turned in some beautiful plays to leave the Bama carriers for repeated losses on reverses and end-around plays. In addition to his passing and running, Howell showed some great punting all day. An All-American of All-Americans and the best individualist to ever perform in a Rose Bowl game.

It marked Alabama's third victory in four appearances at Rose Bowl, while Stanford, completing its fifth Rose Bowl try, has won one, tied one and lost three. To say that Stanford is not as good as we said of it originally is to take something away from a greater team—Alabama. As they played yesterday, Alabama by all odds was the greatest, most thrilling and outstanding team ever to make a dent with their cleats in that turf of Rose Bowl.

By their victory, the Alabama kept their Rose Bowl record unblemished—with wins over Washington, Washington State and Stanford, and a tie with the Red—while Stanford's defeat added to the poorest record in these East-West games, had losses to Michigan, Notre Dame, Columbia and Alabama, a tie with Bama and a one-point win over Pittsburgh.

CARDINALS SEND FIVE PLAYERS TO MINOR LEAGUES

Five players have been released to minor league farms in the past two days by the world champion Cardinals. Four of the number were pitchers and the other an outfielder. The latest releases, announced this morning, were those of Pitchers Glenn Spencer and Clarence Heise to the Rochester club of the International League. Spencer last season performed at Houston, while Heise was with Columbus.

Previously Pitchers Jim Winford and Jim Mooney, and Chick Fullis, outfielder, were sent to Columbus. Winford and Mooney last season performed with the Redbirds and Rochester, while Fullis came from the Phillies in a trade for George Davis.

Kit Klein Wins Middle Atlantic Skating Honors

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Skating true to form, Allan Potts of Brooklyn and Kit Klein of Buffalo, yesterday carried off the major honors in the Middle Atlantic speed skating championships before a crowd of 5000.

Potts, winning three events for a total of 90 points, retained the men's title, while Miss Klein, with a first, second and third for a total of 60 points, reclaimed the crown she won in 1933 and did not defend last year. Valentine Bialis, Utica, N. Y., speedster, was runner-up for the men's honors with victories in the mile and three-mile events, while Ritta Fenzel, also of Buffalo, placed second to Miss Klein.

The Brooklyn skater led his field home in the 220, 440 and 880 yard events. Miss Klein won the 220-yard race, but yielded to Helen Bahill of Hempstead, N. Y., in the 440-yard event, and finished third back of Miss Fenzel and Muriel Wilson, Darien, Conn., in the half-mile test.

In the intermediate division, the championship went to Tom Smith of Utica, who placed first in the 440 and second in the 880-yard events. The junior title was won by George Hare of Amsterdam, N. Y., with victories in the two events. A three-inch fall of snow broke up the ice on Downing Park Lake and the races were run off on the new recreation park rink of standard six-lap dimensions. A light rain made the ice slow and sloppy in spots.

334-1 Shot Wins. SYDNEY, Jan. 2.—Paying 33 to 1, Balguy today won the famous Tattersall Cup Stakes. High Cross was second and Dark Chief third. They paid 8 to 1 and 6 to 1, respectively.

Late Spurt by Tulane Beats Temple, 20-14; 30,000 See Contest

By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—The Southland's Sugar Bowl game, its inaugural made sweeter by Tulane's 20 to 14 triumph over Temple yesterday, is an assured fixture in sports.

Thirty thousand spectators, one of the largest crowds which ever witnessed a grid game in the south, packed the stadium to watch a game packed with thrills.

An Annual Affair. The satisfaction over the initial clash brought ready agreement that the game be continued each year between a Southern opponent and some outstanding team from another section.

Both teams had thrill-producing stars.

For Temple, he was the giant "Dynamite Dave" Smukler, who time after time tore through the Tulane line. His passing was a constant threat and his punting fell just short of Tulane's.

Tulane's ace, "Little Monk" Simmons, recovering from a fractured collar bone suffered a month ago, shared honors with a remarkable end, Dave Hardy.

Both teams were feted at a banquet last night after which the Temple squad entrained for the return trip to Philadelphia.

Temple rolled up its 14 points in the first half before Tulane got started. Fumbles paved the way to both touchdowns.

In the first quarter, Barnett Mintz, Tulane halfback, fumbled and Stanley Curzynski, Temple guard, recovered on Tulane's 10-yard line. Smukler ploughed through for five yards and then he threw a touchdown pass to Daniel Testa, halfback. In the next quarter, Temple recovered a fumble by Stanley Curzynski, Tulane fullback, on Tulane's 20-yard line, and Smukler went over for a touchdown after several line plunges. He kicked both extra points.

But then Tulane started.

Simmons' 80-Yard Run. On the kickoff after Temple's second touchdown John McDaniel, Tulane quarter, took the ball, after deceiving tacklers to the left, tossed it to Simmons who raced 80 yards for a touchdown. Barney Mintz, halfback, kicked the extra point.

Third quarter line smashes placed the ball on the 11-yard line where Bucky Bryan, Tulane half, passed to Hardy for a touchdown. Mintz again made the extra point. Then, in the last quarter, Mintz, standing on Temple's 43-yard line, tossed a long pass which Horace Moscrey, half, tipped up into the arms of Hardy, who dashed for a score. Mintz attempted placekick was blocked.

GRIMMITT WILL BOX AT AMATEUR TOURNAY

With two of the five interesting matches involving local talent against Arkansas battlers already closed, Benny Kessler today turned his attention towards signing the principals for the third feature event in his inaugural amateur boxing show of the new year, scheduled Friday, Jan. 11, at the Coliseum.

Three local featherweights have been clamoring for the chance to trade blows with Johnny Grimmitt, 127-pounder from Hot Springs, and Kessler is expected to make his decision this afternoon after watching the trio go through a gymnasium workout. Grimmitt is a former Arkansas State champion, and has participated in 50 battles during the past three years.

Dave Stanfield, a former local titleholder; Tommy Starr of Madison Golden Glove diamond, and Paul Spica, a newcomer with a key position, are the local stars under serious consideration.

NEW YORK AMERICANS DEFEAT CANADIENS, 5-2

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The New York Americans had a firm grip on third place in the international division of the American Hockey League today. They returned to winning ways on the Madison Square Garden ice last night by trouncing the Montreal Canadiens, 5 to 2.

The Amerks were badly outclassed until midway in the second period when, trailing by three goals, they suddenly came back and outfought and outskated the Canadiens.

Azucar Sets New Record, Winning Santa Anita Stake

By the Associated Press. ARCADIA, Cal., Jan. 2.—NEW track record of 1:43.25 for the mile and one-sixteenth at the Santa Anita track was held today by Azucar, seven-year-old gelding. The fast time was made in winning the New Year's $5000 stake.

Azucar, bred in Ireland and a stepbrother of jumper champion, established himself as a possible contender for the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby next month.

The big horse, with Jockey George Woolf up, came from the back of the pack to win by a margin of half a length from Mad Frump and High Glee.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Upper picture shows Dixie Howell, Alabama star, on his 67-yard run which gave him and Alabama their second touchdown in second period against Stanford. Lower picture shows Howell scoring from the five-yard line on a plunge for Alabama's first touchdown.

Sam Embarrasses the Boys.

GENTLEMEN of the press who have been digging the spurs in to Sam Bredon of the Cards, giving him the last word in rough riding, are probably somewhat embarrassed as the New Year dawns. Whereas they had been looking forward to a strike of the Dean family, about contract time this month, 1935's opening finds all smiling on the so-called Dizzy and Daffy front. Just a couple of satisfied athletes.

The fact is that instead of having to haggle and wrangle with either Dizzy or Paul, Bredon pacified both with his first contract offerings. Can it be that some of his Eastern critics have been mistaken as to the degree of Scotch in Sam's makeup?

Following the remarkable climax to the season of the Cardinals and the Deans, it was predicted that the Cardinals would be disrupted by salary wrangles and perhaps holdouts. Bredon's report to the innoocents was that "there will be no trouble signing players next year—from the Deans or anyone else."

Now the Deans are in the fold; Pepper Martin and others have been signed and there isn't a chance for any of the others to start an argument, because Bredon apparently has determined to see that his players are satisfied. Thus far no hair-splitting or haggling has developed, indicating that the contracts have been generous.

Contrary to the prevailing view, the Cardinals have never been from the ball club, will make not less than $40,000 this year."

High Cost of the Deans.

NO word officially is obtainable as to the high cost of signing the Dean boys. The probabilities are strong that the famous brothers who won 49 games between them during the regular season of 1934 will draw a combined salary of something less than $30,000.

Dizzy admitted that he yielded to an offer "somewhere between $22,000 and $28,000." But conservative guesses have not credited him with more than $20,000. Paul is believed to have capitulated for $10,000 or less.

Paul probably is the highest paid second year player the major leagues have produced. Dizzy has reached a peak attained by few pitchers at any time in their careers.

Set for a Big Season.

WHAT they will do this year is conjecture, although it is natural to suppose that both will show improvement. Baseball men doubt that the pair will go through another season like the last. The hazards of the game are such that any bad break may throw one or both off their top stride long enough to prevent the assembling of another joint record like that of last year.

Dizzy has predicted they will finish this season with a total of more than 50 victories. However, that will mean not only good luck throughout the year for both players, both in physical and pitching condition, but also adequate support by the club back of them.

On the other hand, should Dizzy carry on as last season and Paul improve, it would not surprise anyone if they turned in 30 victories each. Given a hard-hitting center fielder and a good season by Pitcher Malone (if he is retained) it might happen.

If it did, the Deans could write their own tickets for 1936.

He Did a Good Job.

AL FLEISHMAN has quit his job as Superintendent of Public Recreation, leaving a record that will make it difficult for his successor to surpass.

Fleishman was probably the hardest-working official holding a civic position and he brought intelligence and energy to bear on his tasks.

He broke up cliques in municipal sports, he improved conditions in many branches of recreation and he opened up new activities. He made a record that compares favorably with that of Rudy Abeken, a pioneer in the job who helped lay the foundations of the present municipal system.

It is unfortunate that his resignation was compelled by the low income derived from the office and which was insufficient to adequately maintain himself and his family. The public is the loser by his resignation.

Sox Sign Collegians.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Two collegiate basketball players have been added to the White Sox roster. Harry Grabiner, vice president of the club, last night said that Paul Donovan of Texas Christian and Beauford Rhea of Virginia Poly Tech, had been added to the outfield staff prior to the club's training at Pasadena next month.

FAUROT NAMED MISSOURI FOOTBALL COACH FOR ONE YEAR

SALARY SET AT $4500; BREWER OUT AS DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

By James M. Gould.

The expected New Year's "shuffling" for athletics at the University of Missouri turned out to be less than a preliminary "shuffling." Two appointments were made but several were left unmade by the Board of Curators in its day-long meeting here yesterday.

Of first importance was the naming of Don Faurot, who as coach at Kirksville Teachers' College, ran his team string of victories to 27 in succession, to succeed Frank Cardozo as head football coach of the Tigers. Faurot, who is to receive a salary of $4500, is not to be director of athletics and his term is but for a single year dating from yesterday.

How Alabama Beat Stanford—Wirephoto Story of the Detailed Play

Central and Marres, St. Louis Hopes in National Soccer Cup Play, Win in Holiday Contests

By Dent McKimming

As the date of the national challenge cup games draws close, it becomes increasingly apparent that St. Louis' hope for a national soccer championship rests between the Centrals and the Marres, the leading teams of the St. Louis Soccer League. Against the "second division" clubs, these two scored 10 goals yesterday and won without being fully extended. Centrals beat the Millers, 4 to 1, and the Marres submerged the Hellrungs, 6 to 3. In the latter game the score late in the second half was 6 to 0.

The "draw" for first round matches in the national competition will be held at New York early this week and a cup match involving two of the local teams will be played at Sportsman's Park a week from next Sunday. It was announced today by Phil A. Riley, league president.

BREWER FAVORS PAID CHAIRMAN FOR MISSOURI ATHLETIC BODY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 2.—Decision of the University of Missouri Board of Curators yesterday to abolish the office of director of athletics and shift C. L. Brewer to a position as professor of physical training left Missouri without a chairman of its State Athletic Commission, governing body for wrestling and boxing. The State law which created the commission stipulated that the commission be headed by a chairman of the State University director of athletics, serving without pay, is chairman of the commission.

Brewer announced today that he has been recommended to Gov. Park Leffel, which would make the chairman of the commission a full-time, salaried State job. In the meantime, Brewer said, he will continue to serve the commission unofficially so far as possible.

SWIMMERS SET 27 NEW RECORDS IN THREE-DAY CARNIVAL

RALPH FLANAGAN ESTABLISHES 10; SIX ARE CREDITED TO MRS. JARRETT

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2.—A new world record and nine national marks yesterday brought to an smashing climax the three-day Olympic Stars aquatic meet, which saw 27 standards topple in the Miami Biltmore pool.

One remarkable young man, Ralph Flanagan, who skyrocketed to aquatic prominence in 1933 only to drop to comparative oblivion last year, used the meet as a springboard to challenge all comers for honors in the April indoor championships.

Flanagan, a Miami High School student, swam to victory against time for four long distance, long course, national records yesterday, bringing his cumulative total to 10 for the meet.

The world record—one of the two achieved by the bevy of Women's Swimming Association of New York and other menials, and one male, Flanagan, who participated in the meet—went to Alice Bridges, national 220 backstroke champion. The Uxbridge, Mass. girl was clocked at 6:12 flat in the 440-yard backstroke, automatically giving her the world record for the slightly shorter 400 meters short course, in which the standard of 6:12 was established by Phyllis Harding of England in May, 1932.

Wins Two U. S. Titles. As well as the world record, Miss Bridges collected two national titles. She clipped 13-5 seconds from Sybil Bauer's time of 6:24-1/2 in the 440, and passed the 400-yard stripe in 5:37-3/5. The existing 400-yard mark, established by Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, of Los Angeles, was 5:46-4/5.

Mrs. Jarrett, Olympic backstroke champion, evened the score, however, by lifting Miss Bridges' 50-yard long course backstroke record. Mrs. Jarrett clipped one-fifth of a second from the standard of 33-1/5, established by the Uxbridge swimmer here last winter.

Florida's water sprite, Katherine Rawls of Fort Lauderdale, contented herself today with bettering one of her own records, the 300-yard short course medley. She cut the time for this from 4:12-1/5 to 4:08-1/10. Her previous time was clocked at Chicago in March, 1934. Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa., wound up the carnival by lifting one of Helene Madison's remaining records, the 500-meter freestyle over the long course, swimming it in 7:08-1/5. Miss Madison required 7:22-3/5 for the distance in her official timed swim.

Flanagan's successes were at the expense of Buster Crabbe, and were records the motion picture player established at Los Angeles in June, 1932, except for one in which the Miami swimmer bettered his own time.

First clocked at 12:00 yards, long course, Flanagan's time was 14:31, 25 seconds faster than Crabbe's standard. At 14:30 yards, the Miami swimmer was 28-5/10 seconds ahead of the old record, with Flanagan's time 17:21-1/5; Crabbe 17:49-6/10.

The 1540, the final Crabbe record attacked by Flanagan, was covered in 18:41-1/5, compared with the existing 19:12. The high point of the three days of record-making was Mrs. Jarrett's slashing the time of her own world record for the 150-yard backstroke by one and four-fifths seconds, thus reducing the time to 1:52 flat. The final standing in number of records was: Flanagan, 10; Jarrett, 6; Bridges, 4; Rawls, 3; Kight, 3, and the W. S. A. relay team, 1. With the exception of the world record for Mrs. Jarrett and Miss Bridges, all were national marks, subject to confirmation at the next A. A. U. convention.

Hitler declared the past year should be regarded proudly because of civic, moral and economic progress. "Twelve months ago," he said, "enemies prophesied the Reich's collapse in 1935 but Germany and the German people became stronger in all spheres of national existence and in self-assertion." He said the last summer's party cleaning made it better and that the battle against unemployment is continuing.

BRAZILIAN SHIP MEN STRIKE

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 2.—A strike affecting workers in hundreds of Brazilian Merchant Marine ships started yesterday.
Some estimate that the walkout, brought about to force higher wages, extends to 400,000 workers, but the Government expresses doubt that so large a number is involved. The maritime workers base their demands on the fact the shippers, by agreement with the Government in August of last year, obtained an increase in tariffs from $9,600,000 annually to $19,200,000.

LEGION TO PUSH FIGHT FOR BONUS, LEADER SAYS

Commander Belgrano Replies to Statement of Roosevelt Opposing Immediate Payment.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Frank N. Belgrano Jr., commander of the American Legion, declared yesterday it would press for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus despite the opposition of President Roosevelt.

In a statement issued at Legion headquarters here, he contended that the Roosevelt anti-payment letter of yesterday contained "one of the strongest arguments in favor of the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates I have yet read."

The reference was to the President's reminder that when veterans borrowed 50 per cent of the face value of the certificates in 1931, it was used largely to discharge their debts.
"It is only reasonable to suppose the same results would be obtained today when the balance due is paid," said Belgrano.

In a letter to Garland R. Farmer, head of the American Legion post at Henderson, Tex., the President declared the subject was fraught with misunderstanding; that the obligation was not due until 1945 and that the certificates were all the assets many veterans had to leave to their families.

Text of Statement.
The Belgrano statement follows: "I have just read the letter of President Roosevelt to Commander Garland R. Farmer of the American Legion post at Henderson, Tex. 'In it I believe he has presented one of the strongest arguments in favor of the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates I have yet read when he points out that most of the money the veterans received, when they borrowed 50 per cent of the face value of the certificates in 1931, was used to discharge their debts and that it is only reasonable to suppose the same results would be obtained today, when the balance due is paid.'"

"The foundation of good business is good credit, as I have pointed out in my addresses throughout the country. The money due the veterans of the World War on the adjusted service certificates would be used to satisfy bills at the corner grocery store, would help to pay rents that are long past due and would go to hard pressed merchants to discharge the accounts of hard-pressed veterans. In short, the money derived from the immediate payment of the certificates would quickly find its way into every channel of business and trade, and would be distributed equally and automatically throughout the country."

"If the 3,531,866 World War veterans, who hold certificates, are to over their heads in debt that they must use the entire amount due them to pay their bills, what greater stimulus could there be for business than to restore to business this vast potential purchasing power?"

"If the veterans are so deeply in debt that they cannot renew purchasing until their debts are paid, the Government can restore this tremendous purchasing power by making immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates."
Ald. Those Most in Need.
"Official surveys, made by the 54 managers of the Veterans' Administration's field stations, show that 65 per cent of veterans used the money borrowed on the adjusted service certificates in 1931 for personal and family necessities, 20 per cent for investment and deposit in savings accounts, 8 per cent for the purchase of automobiles and 7 per cent for expenditures classed by the Veterans' Administration as resulting in no practical benefit."

"The cash paid the former soldiers in the retirement of this debt would benefit that very element of business men who are most in need of help, the average citizen, the vast bulk of merchants and middle class business and professional people."

"As far as the American Legion is concerned, it quite well understands the monetary requirements necessary to liquidate the adjusted service certificates, now held by veterans. It adopted a resolution recommending the immediate payment of these certificates as a medium for the distribution of part of the vast sums the Government had committed itself to expend for relief and economic recovery purposes, without adding to the national debt."

"It is, of course, quite beside the point to say that the certificates must be kept intact for the widows of veterans."

"In the first place, the Government."

ment's debt to the veterans, and in the second place, everyone understands that the average certificate, held by a veteran upon which a loan has been made, will yield practically nothing in 1945 by reason of accumulated interest charges against the loan.
"The American Legion will present its clear-cut mandate of the Miami convention, recommending immediate cash payment of these certificates, with cancellation of interest accrued and refund of interest paid, to Congress within the next few days and I feel certain that recommendation will be accepted and adopted."

Today The Lindbergh Trial. We Lose Oxygen. The Old Times. Money Flows West.

Scenes as Bruno Hauptmann Went On Trial in Murder of Lindbergh Baby

The Lindbergh Trial.
We Lose Oxygen.
The Old Times.
Money Flows West.

R. GEORGE W. CLARK, an editor of New York, who knows news, says, concerning the Bruno Hauptmann-Lindbergh murder trial that begins today:

"I believe that he is guilty, but I am not sure that absolute legal proof of his guilt can be produced. I believe that he will surely be convicted, but I do not know whether he will be convicted legally."

Actual legal PROOF, at this date, that Bruno Hauptmann or any other individual actually took the Lindbergh child from its father's house will be difficult.

But circumstantial evidence sufficient to convince the jury that the man accused committed the crime of kidnaping and murder, beyond reasonable doubt, is sufficient to convict. In many cases, circumstantial evidence is the most convincing of all evidence, more convincing than direct testimony. A witness may be mistaken, self-deceived or untruthful. Facts and circumstances will not lie.

Champagne, even tightly corked, eventually loses the gas that creates the desired bubbles. So, according to Prof. H. N. Russell of Princeton University, a deep scientist, our atmosphere is slowly losing the oxygen that makes human life possible. It leaks away, in some fashion, through the "cork" of "imponderable ether" that seals tightly the little layer of breathing gas that surrounds our planet.

Long after our atmosphere became unbreathable, through lack of oxygen, human beings might continue to live here in small numbers, breathing electrolytic oxygen. Air pilots now breathe oxygen artificially provided when they rise toward the stratosphere. But, you need not worry for yourself, or your grandchild, because "the oxygen dead line will not be reached for another thousand million years." Even then, science might extract sufficient oxygen from rocks that are full of it.

On New Year's day, "The Times," of London, called "The Thunderer," although it has occasionally whispered feebly, celebrated its 150th birthday. It first appeared in London coffee houses, a little four-page sheet, with no signs of greatness.

But within 50 years, the editor of the Times was called "the most powerful man in the country" by the British Lord Chancellor.

Once, owned by Lord Northcliffe, the Times is now the property of Lord Astor, one of whose American ancestors, when the Times started, was accumulating New York Real estate that made it possible for his descendant to become owner of the Times.

Abraham Lincoln called the Times "the most powerful thing in the world, except, perhaps, the Mississippi." Its power was not in circulation, but in its influence on men's minds. In the Crimean War, Sir William Russell, "Times" correspondent, exposed the horrible conditions under which British soldiers were living and fighting, and forced reforms.

In the "big" war, Lord Northcliffe used the Times to warn his country against its mistakes. He was burned in effigy, but served his country.

The best known Times correspondent, who called himself Henri de Blowitz, learned in advance about the Treaty of Berlin, in 1878, published it in the Times on the day it was signed. Mr. de Blowitz was an uncle of the distinguished American cartoonist, F. B. Oppen, and his real name was Oppen. He changed it to Blowitz, name of a small village in which he was born. When J. D. Boucher, "Times" Balkan correspondent, died, Bulgaria issued memorial stamps in his honor.

Charles A. Dana wondered why there was "no great correspondent in Washington, D. C." Such a correspondent would have plenty to write about, now.

The Times keeps no accredited correspondent in Russia. That is conservatism.

Farmers, newspapers devoted to the farmers' interest, big bankers of the East, are interested in the fact that the money tide that for so long flowed from producers in the West to accumulators in the East, is now flowing in the other direction.

The money tide goes out toward the farms of wheat raisers and stock in the West and Middle-West, and to the cotton farmers in the South. It is as though the Great Lakes had been tilted upward at the eastern end, and the waters sent rushing toward the Rocky Mountains.

The tide will not flow long in that western direction, probably.

Great Names Among Winners Of Nobel Prize

Two of the Most Important Physicians Worked With Nerve Cells.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE list of Nobel prize winners in medicine is a long one, and includes a few of the medical immortals. Such is Robert Koch, who received the award in 1905. Koch's name stands with the names of the greatest in the whole course of medical discovery from the time of Hippocrates to our own. He discovered the cause of tuberculosis and the cause of septic poisoning. He forged the means to develop the science of bacteriology of sanitation and hygiene.

Another equally great name in medicine, that of Rontgen, who discovered the X-ray, is not on the medical list, but he was awarded the Nobel prize in physics in 1901.

Of Americans to win the prize the first was Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research. Including our Canadian brethren, we name next Dr. Frederick G. Banting and Dr. J. J. Macleod for their discovery of insulin in the treatment of diabetes. Dr. Karl Landsteiner, also of the Rockefeller Institute, was awarded the prize in 1930; and Dr. T. M. Morgan, in 1933, was recognized for his work on heredity. Thus before this year, there were five Americans to achieve the honor.

While most readers will recognize a majority of the winners in medicine, there probably will be a few names that will be utterly unfamiliar to anyone except physicians. Among these is Ramon Cajal, who won the prize in 1906. Dr. Cajal was a Spaniard; one of the greatest scientists which the country has ever produced. His great work was in demonstrating that the entire nervous system was made up of an infinite number of single cells, and that it functioned by sending impulses through millions of tiny little fibrils, from cell to the other. This conception, which was named the "Neuron theory," changed all of our ideas of nervous functioning.

During the past year Dr. Cajal passed away. He was a philosopher as well as a scientist, and published a splendid little series of aphorisms and maxims, of which the following are examples:

"Do you wish to be invisible? Be poor. To women? Be old."

"A woman generates her parent, but her husband, and adorns only her sons."

"In the future, children will be for the poor a resource, for the plutocrat a mode of ostentation, for the bureaucrat and small rentier a sacrifice."

Ramon Cajal's fellow recipient of the year 1906 was an Italian, Professor Camillo Golgi, known for Golgi's stain, a method of staining nerve cells. Upon this, much of Ramon Cajal's work was founded. Golgi was a late representative of those tremendous giants of the intellect who have been born on Italian soil. The Italians are often thought of as artistic, musical and temperamental, but in the departments which impose the most severe intellectual disciplines, such as mathematics, physics and physiology, they have produced some of the leaders of civilization—Galileo Galvani, Marconi, Golgi.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr: CAN you tell me how best to cope with this situation? Mine is a second marriage, to a man, whom I afterward learned through his children, is a confirmed phlegmatic and flint, caused him to refuse to go out with him socially because of this silly complex, and I also soon became disgusted, humiliated and discouraged, trying to avoid all social affairs on account of it.

Recently, after seven years of remaining away from these places, we attended a dance. There, although 50 years old, acting "kittenish" and ridiculous, he informed all who came that his wife "knew nothing about dancing," then turning to me, "Dear, I don't want you to dance for fear you will fall; the floor is so slick."

How is one to treat, tactfully, such a case? Shall I go way back and sit down, go to the jungles and dance with the lions, grab all the new men and have an old-fashioned "show-down" with him? Or shall I, as the attitude seems to do about as much good as a snowball in Hades? To me, flitting in such circumstances, is about the cheapest thing one can indulge in. One hates to hear one's husband called, audibly, "stupid," that old flint, etc., etc."

How to obtain serenity and peace in such circumstances is what I would love to know. N. R. C.

I am surprised that you were not more resourceful when such a wonderful opportunity presented itself. Of course, when your husband with such deep tenderness, proclaimed you stupid, you should have smiled, sweetly, saying, "Well, I know I can manage to stay on my feet, dear. But suppose we let one of these gentlemen decide for himself, whether or not, I can dance. I feel sure one of them would be willing to sacrifice himself just for the sport of testing your words; wouldn't you, Mr. So-and-so?"

Of course no gentlemen would refuse that, even if he dreaded the experience. But, if you really do not dance well, LEARN! Take some private lessons, unbeknownst to him, and then tip the "light fantastic" with a (to him) surprisingly light heart. And leave to public opinion the gentleman's foolish efforts to "cut the pigeon wing"; the public's reaction will be aptly.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an address and a stamped envelope for personal reply.

he is making of himself, while undermining the respect, and his standing, in the community. He is like an ostrich with his head in the sand. No appeal to the woman will avail so long as she is getting his money, but the hurt to his personal and business position might make him think the matter over.

DEAR Mrs. Carr: WE are two young men who are going with two girls we think a great deal of, and we are writing you on a piece of paper had while walking along the street with these girls.

Two fellows passed us and the girls stopped them and, although they never seen them before, began talking to them. When my friend and I tried to tell them that it did not look right to stop strange men on the street, they merely replied, "We did it before we met you and will do it now."

Maybe we are being old-fashioned, and perhaps we are wrong. Please print this and give us your honest opinion.

BUDDIES.

If, to have enough respect for the girls to try to keep them from doing one of the cheapest, most idiotic thing a girl can do, is being "old-fashioned," I think you may take some pride in putting yourselves in this category. It not only places a girl in a false position and causes her the loss of her reputation, but sometimes places her in actual danger. The men who are a party to this sort of thing, can have few qualms about her safety or moral death.

British Colony Issues Postage Stamp Series

Cyprus Pictorial Group Bear Head of King George—Belgian Postals.

ANOTHER British Colony has come on the horizon with new postage stamps. It is Cyprus, lying off the coast of Turkey in the Mediterranean Sea.

The vacationists can buy them, but while they are spending their money, the stay-at-homes can be studying new style trends and figuring out their spring and summer wardrobes.

Winter resort clothes now are regarded as significant in fashion circles. They represent the highest echelon of what leading designers think should be the logical choice for the coming seasons. Not all of the selections "make good" in Miami and Palm Beach, but the majority of them do, and what Mrs. Moneybags wears in the fashionable resorts in January Mrs. Average Citizen will be wearing in St. Louis in June.

This being the status in the style world, take a second look at that trouser skirt costume on display in your favorite store and conclude that you or your daughter will be bicycling in it before many weeks have passed. Consider also the effect of a white linen blouse with a raspberry colored wool skirt and decide that the combination is not too startling to become a uniform.

These two, and many other innovations are fashion news which the resort collections reveal. Along the others, the following give indications of the values being in two colors. Five of them, 1/2-plastre to 2 1/2 plastre, inclusive, also bear the head of King George in a crowned oval in the upper right hand corner.

Belgian Semi-Postals. The previously-heralded charity stamps of Belgium, the annual issue in support of the anti-tuberculosis campaign, have been placed in use. The seven denominations, 10 centimes to 5 francs, bear a surtax.

Mexico Series. Coincident with the inauguration of the new President of Mexico commemorative stamps were issued. There are 12 regular postage stamps, eight airport stamps and one special delivery stamp.

The values and designs of the postage series are: 1c orange, a native girl with water jug at a well; 2c green, girl with basket of fruit, banana tree in background; 4c light blue, monument, which commemorates the revolution of 1910; 5c dull brown, ancient Torre de los Remedios; 10c dark blue, Cross of Palenque from a Mayan Temple; 15c red blue, statue; 20c slate, top of the Independence Monument; 25c lake, Missionaries Monument; 40c red brown, Stone of Sacrifice of ancient Mexico; 50c black, ruins of Mitla in Oaxaca; 1p brown and red orange, Mexican Eagle, 5p orange and violet, a Mexican soldier.

The airport series are: 5c black horizontal; Aztec mask; 10c red brown horizontal, the Temple Teotihuacan; 15c dark green horizontal, mountain scenery; 20c horizontal red brown, a mountain peak; the Mexican Eagle and native; 30c olive green horizontal, allegorical design of the Spirit of Flight; 50c horizontal bright green, ancient Mexican symbol; 1p dark green and brown red, head of aviator and airplanes in flight; 5p deep red and black vertical, native mother and child.

The 10c purple black special delivery vertical stamp pictures an Indian Bowman on a snow capped mountain.

News of the Week. Three cent Little America stamps have been removed from the sales list of the Philatelic Agency. It is estimated that 125,000 copies of this stamp have been used on Little America mail.

The 2c and 5c National Parks stamps have appeared on the market in an imperforate condition.

The Philippine Islands will soon issue a new special delivery stamp and a new set of postage due stamps.

FASHION FORECAST from the SOUTH

Palm Beach Models Will Be Next Summer's Mode

By Sylvia Stiles

DON'T make the mistake of thinking that the summery costumes which stores are displaying were created only for the lucky few who can go trekking off to the Southland or on a Mediterranean cruise while the rest of us stay huddled in heavy clothing in St. Louis.

The vacationists can buy them, but while they are spending their money, the stay-at-homes can be studying new style trends and figuring out their spring and summer wardrobes.

neckline and after being stitched down for several inches are released to the waistline. There the stitching begins and continues to the knees.

The short sleeves are cut in one piece with the body of the blouse. The front of the dress fastens on either shoulder with three square buttons. Four pockets are ingeniously added, two on the blouse and two on the skirt. An unusual belt is fashioned of padded rolls of white pique which cross in front and fasten at either side.

THE hat worn with this dress is a velvet brimmed model introducing the new crown interest. A box pleat adorns the top of the crown and there are simple pleats at either side. This hat is available in many different colors including pastels.

The other figure in the panel illustrates the vogue of white linen and colored wool. The skirt is of light weight raspberry wool and the blouse is of white linen.

line with triangular flaps. Among other attractive divided skirt costumes is one combining a navy blue skirt with a white jersey blouse. The blouse has red cross stripes, this color note being repeated by red leather trimmings on the wide, stiff belt. Both blouses tuck inside the top of the skirt.

THE skirt sketched at upper right shows the influence of the cape. The material is a lightweight tweed in tones of gray. The skirt, which is the same length as the jacket buttons on under the lapels. Among noteworthy features of the jacket are the rather high fastening, the absence of a collar although lapels appear, the white pique vestee, the link buttons and vertical buttonholes, the Norfolk back, and the length which is barely to the hipline. The skirt, although straight of line, has an inverted pleat to provide fullness at the center front.

The evening dress is of pussy willow silk displaying a bright blue, red and green design on a white background. The tunic overblouse has a halter neckline and is banded with blue. The skirt is very full at the hemline and has a train. A French linen square of unique pattern being available for separate purchasing.

In spite of one or two novelties made up of several distinct bits of fabric, the one-piece bathing suit promises to be the favorite. One of the novelties consisting of halter and brief, wrapped skirt is a very airy affair patterned after the South Sea pareo.

A few of the costumes which St. Louis stores display as forerunners of the coming modistes have been sketched. The two figures in the panel at lower left are wearing quite significant clothes. The striped frock was sketched from the back to show the interesting detail which is convincing that backs are as important as fronts, if not more so. The material is black imported jersey marked with white cross lines. Five inverted pleats appear at the top of the

The Problem Of Uninvited House Guests

A Reader's Idea for Discouraging Them, and the Rules of Hospitality.

By Emily Post

DEAR Mrs. Post: I READ with interest the letter written to you by a woman who complained about the numerous relatives and friends who insist upon eating them out of house and home. I wish you'd tell this person about the experience of a friend of mine who had this same difficulty.

until she asserted herself in this way: She pretended to have committee meetings and other appointments which kept her away until all hours. And when she came home late she explained that on such days she never fussed for dinner. When a relative persisted in visiting without invitations she went ahead with her plans to houseclean and at other times she took to the sofa with a bad headache. And when the weather was cool and they asked for more blankets, she conveniently had no extra ones because she hadn't known they were coming and had sent several to the cleaners. And on one occasion, when a relative whose chatter grew particularly annoying, stayed on, she enlisted the help of an intimate friend who came in and monopolized the conversation by talking of things that were of no interest to anyone but my friend. I wish I could be the friend to help your reader; I'd love it. I am really a kind person when others have consideration for my rights and feelings.

Answer: I think I understand exactly how you feel, and I'm sure that you feel, too, that this behavior is perhaps not just the sort that ought to be encouraged as an example of hospitality. But, on the other hand, I do agree that something is to be said for the protection of those whose homes are invaded by uninvited guests—relatives and otherwise. After all, the one place in the world where we should be free to invite those we love and to be equally able to be free from those who choose to consider the homes of their acquaintances as inns at which they do take up their abode and for so long as it happens to suit their convenience. And yet, to break the fundamental laws of hospitality, as this hostess felt obliged to do, must in itself have been a far from tranquilizing experience.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

WHEN Ruth Etting takes to the skies again her radio network will interfere with Rudy's. . . He goes on at 8 p. m. Thursdays and Ruth starts at 7:45 for half an hour. . . She belongs in a smart supper spot, too. — The Place Pigale, Rainbow Room or something big-time like those places. . . When others use that "double-time" in their second choruses as they step their distinctive style—it sounds so foofy. . . Gosh, how I despise copyists! . . . I always have. . . You can't respect anybody who is merely a copyist, not even when they are good at it. . . But criticism rolls off their dull knives—for they all are so desperate for recognition (of a sort) and so desperate to make a living—they stuff their waxed ears to the hilt. . . But nobody can tell me that when they try to go to sleep at night—that they don't toss restlessly, knowing they are also-rans.

Hot Spot.

The most eye-filling of the Broadway area rendezvous is the newly upholstered Casino, not the Paree or the one in the Park, but the one where the imported French revue, Folies Bergere, arrived Xmas midnight. . . Other assignments kept this passerby from waiting to enjoy the new tenant, but it is as enchanting as the place itself, it probably will give the rest of the less headaché. . . Russell Patterson's marionettes in the mezz are among the high spots, and the layout has the big-time brand written all over it. . . The transient trade will have to include it among the ports that mustn't be missed when seeing New York, and the townies will find the beautifully appointed place worth the admission.

Tough Town.

Philadelphia, they tell me, is the toughest town for shows to try their wings in. . . The audiences there are not clumps—they know what they like. . . Boston isn't so fussy. . . The critics there are the live-and-let-live sort. . . Didn't Ziegfeld's "Smiles" entice rave reports there? "Smells" would have been a better title for it. . . Pittsburgh is another city where the audiences are practically G. J. Nathans. . . Washington, and Baltimore simply won't be bothered giving an opinion, to hear some of the players tell it. . . I'm Chicago-dizzy. . . New York is almost as glib as Chicago. . . San Francisco is nicer than either place and Los Angeles puts skin on my frame. . . Miami Beach, in the Roney sector, is the nearest thing to Heaven—and look who's talking! . . . I mean Heaven must be something like it. . . If you think your show or act is good, try it out in New Haven, Ann Arbor or Champaign, Illinois. . . The colts boys think you're a pedic—if you don't wear skirts. . . I'll never forget the time I made the sad blunder of giving a theater full of college boys an argument from the stage. . . One was lying in his front row pew with his big toes on the orchestra rail railing and daring me to get comical, it seemed. . . And so like a dope—I made a flip crack about collegiates—and then came the ambulance.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others. . . Help cleanse the bowels with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. . . Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating. . . Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless "no good" feeling, dull complexion caused by constipation. . . Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color. . . Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with constipation and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. TANGO

After an Idyllic Secret Honeymoon, Treasure and Tony Return Home, Thinking No One Knows of the Marriage.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

THOSE days at Tahoe were a series of mental photographs which Treasure could take out for the rest of her life at any time, and thrill again. Pictures of herself and Tony with a glistening, superb, background of mountains covered with snow. Tony, leaping from bed to close the windows shouting, "Wowie, it's cold," breakfast served in their room when, wrapped in the lace and satin negligee he had chosen, wearing the adorable blue satin mules, she officiated behind the coffee pot.

Later, in the white woolen suit, which matched Tony's sweater, they would go coasting or clumsily try their luck on skis.

Through it all ran the theme of Tony's love. His passionate tenderness was like a rosy veil through which she gazed enchanted at the rest of the world. At twilight they returned to blazing fires and the glow of the setting sun; ate dinner without changing and stumped up the stairs intoxicated with the cold fresh air and laughter and love. Tony was worried over the fact that the San Francisco papers might reprint the notice of their marriage. But as the week went by this fear passed. Then just before they went home a letter came from his mother.

"Dear Boy," she wrote, "We are delighted that you are having such a good time. Your letter sounded completely happy. It is wonderful how being in the mountains will sweep the cobwebs from one's mind. I'm sure you will come home feeling much better and be ready to take your place in your dear father's business with no unworthy entanglement. "That's you, my Sweet!" grinned Tony who had been reading the letter aloud.

But Treasure suddenly stricken with remorse and a realization of the seriousness of their act cried, "It makes it seem as if we shouldn't have done it. She's going to be so terribly hurt when she finds it out."

"But she won't, darling!" "Are you sure we can keep it?" "Certainly!" Tony said confidently drawing her down into his arms. "Don't bother your pretty little head over this. I've something much more important to ask you?" She stared at him doubtfully. "What?" "Just how much do you love your husband this morning?" "What?" "Listen, dear, I'm serious. "So am I. Answer me, wench, before I have you thrown into the dungeon." "I won't love you at all if you don't finish reading me that letter."

"Away with it!" he cried tossing it across the room. "We're not going to have our honeymoon ruined by any dismal old letter." JUST the same Treasure came upon him that afternoon rereading it with a frown between his eyes. And his mother who had seemed only a dimly formidable person with a good heart began to take on the aspect of a mother like her own whom they had wronged. Their gayety that day was slightly forced. At night she lay soberly in her arms.

If anything should happen to separate us," she whispered. "Dearest, nothing will." Later he cried, "I would kill anyone who came between us now." But long after he was asleep with his dark head cradled in her arms she lay wondering how she could ever face life without him.

The next day Anthony destroyed the letter and their fears disappeared with it. The hours from then on were pure unalloyed joy. By the time they returned to San Francisco, Treasure felt as if they had been married for months instead of the week it really was. It was late when they arrived so she spent her first night alone in the new apartment. It was on Eddy street across from a little park.

Not exactly the location one would choose to live in permanently, Tony said, but it seemed positively grand to Treasure. The building was large and rather ornate on the outside was occupied by a great many couples where the husbands like her own seemed compelled to be away most of the time. No one had anything to do with anyone else. There was no running back and forth or chattering in the halls. On the contrary aside from an occasional bitter quarrel it seemed particularly peaceful to the girl who was used to the hub-bub of Fillmore street. In the late morning the benches in the park were occupied with the wives who took their dogs out for airings. There were, Treasure soon observed, no children. Probably they weren't allowed. She had only one room and a kitchenette. Her apartment was on the second floor, the rooms were large and clean and sunny. The kitchen was all white and green tile, shining linoleum and pretty pink dishes. The living room was Spanish, Tony said. She thought it charming with its wide divan, low tables and bright colored chairs. The moment she entered it she felt at home. Nevertheless the next afternoon found her hurrying toward Fillmore street. Her mother was in the kitchen when she heard the dining room

TODAY'S PATTERN

For Small Girls

IS it time for your youngster to be learning to sew? Then why not let her start in on a pretty little frock for herself—this, for instance? If she is a very little girl she could help you make the belt—and if she's bigger she'd adore to do the whole thing herself. It may be made with those gay little ruffles climbing over the shoulders to emphasize the charm of its cunning puffed sleeves—or without the ruffles as you see in the smaller sketch. In case it's a party frock she needs, have her make it with lace sleeves and collar. Remember there's a diagrammed instructor included with each pattern to help every inch of the way!

Pattern 2156 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 8 requires 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Send for your copy of the ANNE ADAMS WINNER FASHION BOOK! Crowded with exclusive patterns for the child, the young girl and the matron. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS BUT WHEN ORDERED WITH AN ANNE ADAMS PATTERN IT IS ONLY TEN CENTS. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS FOR BOTH.

Address orders to St. Louis Post-Dispatch Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York City.

Distribution Of Troubles In the World

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"I AM inclined to think," a reader writes, "that, taking trouble as an average, the amount which enters into one life differs little from that which enters into another. "It may be distributed differently," he goes on, "but each of us has to eat his peck of dirt. Time when I used to envy people who apparently had not a care in the world, but not now. "Every human being has much the same amount of trouble as every other, and for that reason I do not wish to change places with any one. There would be no advantage in it."

With which agree the words of a wise old saint, "Many weak and unstable people say, Behold! what a happy life doth that man lead, how wealthy, how powerful and exalted. It is an illusion, for such dignities are never possessed without anxiety and fear."

How far are these two observations right? My own acquaintance with life and my fellow-men convinces me that some people do suffer more than others, due more to native disposition than to outward facts.

Some people, to be sure, do seem to be born under a dark star. Disaster follows fast and follows faster. Everything they touch goes wrong. Yet such people often win the greatest victories.

One cannot help seeing that some people are unhappy because they are wrongly placed in life. They need change to more congenial surroundings and companionships. More than once I have seen such a change bring the bloom of happiness, and develop unexpected powers.

Nor is it any use saying that people can be as happy when they are materially insecure as when they are secure. The old prayer, "Give me neither poverty nor riches," was a wise one for us all. If all of us have to take the same dose of bitter medicine, some do manage to swallow it without a wry face and go on.

Or else they bluff it through, keeping their sorrows to themselves, not wishing to burden others who are already loaded down.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

For Thursday, Jan. 3, 1935. TODAY is full of ideas, inspirations, plans for the future, and general on-your-toesness. But the afternoon and evening hold promise of better quality thinking, even if not so long-distance. Hold a. m. thoughts awhile.

Necessities of the Soul. Said Thoreau: "Money is not required to buy one necessity of the soul." Certainly money cannot buy a clear conscience if we have done wrong. And a clear conscience is a necessity of the soul. "Honesty of character is of higher value among both men and gods," said the ancients, "than coins and jewels of great price." Have you put honesty on your list of necessities?

Your Year Ahead. Your year ahead is highly stimulated imaginatively; turn day-dreams into practical profit, especially in new ways after April. Make all the new friends you can—plan for this. Danger: till Aug. 14; from Nov. 2 to Dec. 19.

Corn Soup

One and one-half cups corn. Two tablespoons chopped onions. One tablespoon chopped pimiento. One tablespoon chopped celery. Three cups milk. One cup water. One-half teaspoon salt. One-half teaspoon paprika. Three tablespoons butter. Three tablespoons flour. Three cups milk. Mix corn, seasonings and water. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Melt butter, add flour and when blended add milk and cook until sauce thickens a little. Stir frequently. Add corn mixture and cook three minutes. If desired the corn mixture can be strained before added to sauce.

Baked Apple Sauce

Four cups sliced apples. One cup sugar. One cup water. One teaspoon cinnamon. Two tablespoons butter. One tablespoon lemon juice. Mix ingredients. Bake 45 minutes in covered pan in moderate oven. Stir frequently.

Willy Nilly Gets Lost While Out In a Snowstorm

By Mary Graham Bonner

"NOW," said Willy Nilly, "I'm going to tidy up this place, and then I'm going to walk to the village beyond and get some adhesive tape to start training my sticking-out ears to stay back. I'm going to call on a magician whom I have heard who lives in a little yellow house at the outskirts of the woods that lie beyond ours. He will be able to tell me how I'm to treat my ears so that they will lose their pointed appearance."

"I heard of him not long ago," hadn't the time to see him. But if I don't attend to my ears soon I haven't the backbone of a snowflake."

"It's beginning to snow quite heavily now," barked Rip. "I think I'll go for a scamper."

"That's a good idea," agreed Willy Nilly. "And while this little snow storm is with us I'll finish my chores so that I'll be all ready to give plenty of time to my ears the prospect of giving his ears all the time and attention they needed that he worked quickly and well. He did not notice that the snow storm was becoming heavier and heavier."

It was almost dark when he stopped working and at his door he heard the Puddle Muddler. They came in covered with snow, which soon melted over his nose, clean floor so that he had to go rags to wipe up the puddles.

"Where is Rip?" Willy Nilly asked. "He should be home from his scamper by now." The wind began to howl, the snow swirling about furiously, and the night was on, but no Rip appeared.

Giblets and Mushrooms

Four tablespoons butter. Four tablespoons flour. Chopped cooked giblets. Two-thirds cup cooked meat. One-fourth teaspoon salt. One-fourth teaspoon paprika. One-fourth teaspoon celery salt. One and two-thirds cups milk. Melt butter in frying pan, add brown flour, giblets and mushrooms. Stir constantly. Add rest of ingredients and cook two minutes. Stir constantly.

"SAHARA" HEATS THIS 9-ROOM HOUSE FOR ONLY $72.30 SAYS MRS. BALFAY. Sahara is the best coal I've ever used, and I ought to know good coal because I have been buying it for 40 years," says Mrs. F. D. Balfay of 5701 Bartmer Ave. "It burns fine and gives practically no clinkers, and it's so clean and easy to handle. As far as heat is concerned, there is just no comparison between Sahara and cheap coal. Economy? Why, Sahara heated this 9-room residence all last winter for only $72.30, and we didn't stint on heat, either."

Sahara Coal MERCHANTS. CHESTNUT 8550 314 N. FOURTH ST. Rich in Productive Heat. Let us quote you, whatever your fuel requirements. A Sahara-heated home is always a warm home, because Sahara is packed with intense heat. U. S. Bureau of Mines analysis gives the vein producing Sahara the highest heat value among Illinois coals. Your fuel dollar buys more heat when you buy Sahara, hence you never have to stint on heat. As for economy, with what other fuel could you heat a 9-room house satisfactorily for only $72.30? Choose Sahara, the guaranteed quality King of Illinois coals, and you will say with Mrs. Balfay: "It's the best coal I've ever used!"
